No 376 A
E. R. No 6633
School Library
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS
JOHN HENRY NEWMAN

From a drawing by G. Richmond in the possession of H. E. Wilberforce, Esq. [By permission.]
THE

DREAM OF GERONTIUS

BY

CARDINAL NEWMAN

WITH INTRODUCTION AND NOTES

BY

MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN, A.M., L.L.D.

Professor of English Language and Literature in the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.

91 AND 93 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
LONDON AND BOMBAY
1903
FRATRI DESIDERATISSIMO
JOANNI JOSEPH GORDON
ORATORII S.P.N. PRESBYTERO
CUJUS ANIMA IN REFRIGERIUM
J. H. N.

In die Comm.
Omn. Fid. Def.
1865
INTRODUCTION

As a rule, when Cardinal Newman’s poetry is mentioned, people think of “The Pillar of the Cloud,” better known as “Lead, Kindly Light.” This lyric is only one of the many beautiful poems written by an author whose fame as a writer of the finest modern prose in the English language has eclipsed his reputation as a poet. Nevertheless, he wrote a very great poem, “The Dream of Gerontius”—a poem which the intellectual world admires more and more every year, and which yields its best only after careful study and consideration. It has been described as a metrical meditation on death. It is more than that; it is the realization by means of a loving heart and a poetic imagination of the state of a just soul after death,—Gerontius typifying not the soul of a particular person imagined by Cardinal Newman, but your soul, my soul, any soul which may be fortunate enough to satisfy the judging and merciful God. No poet has ever presented the condition of the soul, as made known by the theology of the Catholic Church, so forcibly and appealingly as Cardinal Newman. The poem is filled with intense white light, and the soul on earth sees itself as it will be at the moment before its death; as it will be when, strengthened by the last sacraments and upborne by the prayers of its friends, it approaches the bar of judgment. Separated from the body until the day of the Resurrection, when it shall be united to that glorified body, it is not sundered by death from the love of those who have loved it on earth. Gerontius about to be judged feels that he must fail

"And drop from out the universal frame
Into that shapeless, scopeless, blank abyss,
That utter nothingness"

from which the soul came, and, in its depths of fear, it pleads silently that its friends in Christ may pray for it. The dread of annihilation is upon it; it fears "the great deep" ¹ to which it goes. And, in the agony of its rending from the beloved body, it thinks—for it can no longer speak—of the horror of nothingness. All its physical supports are gone. Its eyes are darkening and glazing; its feet motionless and cold; its arms and hands rigid. To those in the sick-room the body once so beautiful,

"from the graced decorum of the hair
Ev’n to the tingling sweet
Soles of the simple, earth-confiding feet," ² is now white as white marble and as lifeless. But the soul is not dead, though the earthly parts of the body

¹ From Merlin’s song in Tennyson’s "Coming of Arthur."
² Coventry Patmore’s "Ode to the Body."
INTRODUCTION

appear to be, and it hears the prayers of the Church for the dying as the supreme moment of its departure from the body is at hand. Some of these prayers, translated from the Latin, the author puts into the mouths of the assistants. They have all the refreshing strength that the Church gives; they represent the supplication of millions of devout souls bound to this dying brother in the communion of saints. The soul gains new strength from these prayers; it arouses itself; sees God through the ruin of the world, and wills to be wholly His. The assistants by the bedside redouble their supplications in the sacred words of the Litany for the Dying, which Cardinal Newman again interprets in English verse, though the Litany is in the Latin tongue. Again, the soul gains strength for a moment, and calls, in the universal speech of the Church, for strength, and that, "out of the depths,"¹ the holy God might save it. Then it uses its will to believe, and within itself asserts the creed of the Church, which is musically interpreted by the poet:

"Firmly I believe and truly
God is Three, and God is One,
And I next acknowledge duly
Manhood taken by the Son."

The moment of agony, the moment of the realization of the soul that it is alone, bereft of its support, is terrible but short. In the "Inferno" of Dante, with all its objective horrors, there are no lines so terrible as these, which show the spirit naked, wild with horror and dismay:

¹From the Psalm, "De profundis clamavi ad te, Domine."—"Out of the depths have I cried to Thee, O Lord."

"And worse and worse,
Some bodily form of ill
Floats on the wind, with many a loathsome curse
Tainting the hallowed air, and laughs and flaps
Its hideous wings."

We can imagine the scene in the room in which Gerontius is dying. The priest, in his surplice and violet stole, has sprinkled the chamber and the persons present with holy water, using the form of the cross, and has said the Asperges:

"Thou shalt sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be cleansed: Thou shalt wash me, and I shall be made whiter than snow."

Gerontius has kissed the crucifix, and it is still before him. In the glow of the lighted candle the "Litany for the Dying" is recited by the priest and the "assistants," that is to say, all in the room who will pray. The passing of the soul may not have occupied a second, as we reckon time, and yet, as "The Dream of Gerontius" suggests, the soul, sensitive and vital, may live through what might seem to be a hundred years. As soon as it appears that the soul has departed, the priest says:

"Subvenite, Sancti Dei, occurrite Angeli Domini, Suscipientes animam ejus, Offerentes eam in conspectu Altissimi.”
INTRODUCTION

This prayer dwells last in the ears of Gerontius. He has slept for a moment, refreshed by the Church, and he awakes to find himself free.

“I had a dream; yes: some one softly said
‘He’s gone,’ and then a sigh went round the room,
And then I surely heard a priestly voice
Cry ‘Subvenite,’ and they knelt in prayer.”

The soul, borne forward on its way to the Judge, hears the song of its Guardian Angel, whose work is done. As the soul proceeds, the voices of the demons are heard; they express the pride of those who defy God. They cry out:

“Virtue and vice,
A knave’s pretence,
’Tis all the same.”

The soul wonders why it cannot move hand or foot, and the angel says:

“Nor hast thou now extension, with its parts
Correlative,—long habit cozens thee,—
Nor power to move thyself, nor limbs to move.”

1 “Come to his assistance, ye saints of God; come forth to meet him, ye angels of the Lord: Receiving his soul: Offering it in the sight of the Most High.”

2 This passage in “The Dream of Gerontius” calls to mind Tennyson’s lines in “The Princess”:

“Ah, sad and strange, as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awakened birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square.”
So infinitesimal has the time been since the soul left the body that the "Subvenite" is not yet finished when the soul is at the very throne of Judgment:

"I hear the voices that I left on earth."

The angel answers:

"It is the voice of friends around thy bed
Who say the 'Subvenite' with the priest."

The angel of the Agony supplicates for the soul, as for its brother, and then the eager spirit darts forward alone to the feet of God. Gerontius is judged; he passes lovingly to Purgatory. His Guardian Angel says:

"And ye great powers,
Angels of Purgatory, receive from me
My charge, a precious soul, until the day
When, from all bond and forfeiture released,
I shall reclaim it for the courts of light."

Waiting until he shall enter into the full glory of the Lord, Gerontius is left by the poet. This soul knows now what it did not know on earth,—what the real happiness of Heaven is; "it measures the distance which separates itself from this happiness. It understands how infinite this distance is, through its own fault. It suffers terribly. Its sorrow grows with its love, as it loves God more and more with all the fibres of its being; it is drawn by vital and mighty bonds towards the object of its love, but each bond is broken by the weight of its faults, which like a mass of lead holds it down."¹

¹ La Psychologie du Purgatoire (The Psychology of Purgatory): Abbé Chollet, Doctor of Theology at Lille.
There can be no question as to the correspondence of the teaching of Cardinal Newman with the theology of the Catholic Church. Dante is put by Raphael, in the famous picture, the Disputà, among the Doctors of the Church, and the author of "The Dream of Gerontius" would have merited a similar honor even if he had never been created a Cardinal.

For advanced students interested in the study of literature a comparative reading of "The Dream of Gerontius" with the "Purgatorio" of Dante, Book III, Milton's "Paradise Lost," Rossetti's "The Blessed Damosel," and Tennyson's "In Memoriam" would be very interesting and profitable, provided this is done always with reference to the exact teaching of the Church. For exalted purity, for terseness and beauty of expression, for musical cadences, "The Dream of Gerontius" stands first among the few great poems that depict the life after death. "In Memoriam" is made up of human yearnings, of faith, of doubt. It never passes beyond "the bar" of death. Milton's "Paradise" is one of angels rather than men, and Rossetti's poem is only a reflection of earth. In Dante's "Purgatorio" the splendor seems to be so great that the appeal to the individual heart is lost, but the oftener we read "The Dream of Gerontius," the more its power and beauty and peace grow upon us.

The story of General Charles George Gordon,

The Holy Father "creates" Cardinals, he does not appoint them.
"Chinese Gordon," one of the heroes of the nineteenth century, has passed into history, and every enthusiastic boy or girl ought to know it by heart. Gordon was the type of the valiant soldier who carried the love and fear of God everywhere. He, besieged by pagan hordes, died, in 1884, the death of a martyr to duty. This man was only one of those who found consolation in "The Dream of Gerontius" at the very hour of death. General Gordon's copy of the poem—a small duodecimo—was presented to the late Mr. Frank Power, correspondent of the London Times. The latter sent it home to his sister in Dublin. Deep pencil-marks had been drawn under lines all bearing on death and prayer. For instance: "Pray for me, O my friends"); "'Tis death, O loving friends, your prayers,—'tis he"); "So pray for me, my friends, who have not strength to pray"); "Use well the interval"); "Prepare to meet thy God"); "Now that the hour is come, my fear is fled." Later power met the fate of a hero. The last words that Gordon underlined before he gave him the book were:

"Farewell, but not forever, brother dear;
Be brave and patient in thy bed of sorrow."

The metre in "The Dream of Gerontius" changes with the thought, and it is always appropriate to it. The solemn movement of the opening lines gives the typical music, which is varied lyrically. As an example of exquisite musical variety on a firm basis of unity the poem is admirable. The level of "Lead,
INTRODUCTION

Kindly Light” is reached many times in the expression of the highest faith and love, and in musical quality the famous hymn is even surpassed by

“Take me away, and in the lowest deep
There let me be.”

Why Cardinal Newman should have presented the experience of a soul after death as a “dream” we can imagine from his habitual caution in dealing with all subjects of importance. He has the boldness of neither Dante nor Milton, and he will not present the poetical experience of a man, at such a vitally sacred moment, as an actual fact; he is too reverential for that, and he calls it a “Dream.” In a letter written in answer to an inquiry as to the meaning of the lines in “The Pillar of the Cloud,”

“And with the morn those angel faces smile
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile,”—

he says, quoting Keble, that poets are “not bound to be critics or to give a sense to what they had written,” 1 and he adds that “there must be a statute of limitations, or it would be quite a tyranny, if in an art which is the expression not of truth but of imagination and sentiment, one were obliged to stand an examination on the transient state of mind which came upon one when homesick, or seasick, or in any other way sensitive or excited.”

1 Catholic Life and Letters by Cardinal Newman; with Notes on the Oxford Movement and its Men:—John Oldcastle (Mr. Wilfred Meynell). To which work the editor is under obligation for important parts of the appended chronology.

It is well to take a great poem like this without too much inquiry or analysis. If the author’s intention is not evident in his poem, either he has failed to be clear, or he is consciously obscure, or we are incapable of appreciating his work. The first and second defects do not appear in “The Dream of Gerontius.” The third, let us trust, does not exist in us. The notes, few in number, are intended to explain only what is not obvious.

In his “Recollections” Aubrey De Vere says: “‘The Dream of Gerontius,’ as Newman informed me, owed its preservation to an accident. He had written it on a sudden impulse, put it aside and forgotten it. The editor of a magazine”—it appeared in The Month, of London, 1865, in two parts—“wrote to him asking for a contribution. He looked into all his pigeon-holes and found nothing theological; but, in answering his correspondent, he added that he had come upon some verses which, if, as editor, he cared to have, were at his command. The wise editor did care, and they were published at once.”

R. H. Hutton, writing of Cardinal Newman, speaks in this way of “The Dream of Gerontius”: “Before the Vatican disputes and shortly after the controversy with Canon Kingsley, Newman had written a poem of which he himself thought so little that it was, as I have heard, consigned or doomed to the waste-basket. . . . Some friend who had an eye for true poetry rescued it, and was the means, therefore, of preserving to the world one of the most unique and original poems of the present century, as well as that one of all of them which is, in every sense, the least in sympathy with the temper of the present century. . . . None of his writings engraves more vividly on his readers the significance of the intensely practical convictions which shaped his career. And especially it impresses on us one of the great secrets of his influence. For Newman has been a sign to this generation that unless there is a great deal of the loneliness of death in life, there can hardly be much of the higher equanimity of life in death. To my mind ‘The Dream of Gerontius’ is the poem of a man to whom the vision of the Christian revelation has at all times been more real, more potent to influence action, and more powerful to preoccupy the imagination than all worldly interests put together.” (R. H. Hutton, “Cardinal Newman.”)

The song of the soul in “The Dream of Gerontius” has sometimes been compared with “The Pillar of the Cloud”—a sacred lyric which is a household cantical wherever the English language is spoken. It is often misquoted, a fourth stanza having been added to it.
This is the authorized version:

"Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom
Lead Thou me on!
The night is dark, and I am far from home—
Lead Thou me on!
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene—one step enough for me."
"I was not ever thus, nor prayed that Thou
Shouldst lead me on.
I loved to choose my path, but now
Lead Thou me on.
I loved the garish day, and, spite of fears,
Pride ruled my will; remember not past years.

"So long Thy power hath blest me, sure it still Will lead me on,
O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent till
The night is gone;
And with the morn those angel faces smile
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile."

In the "Apologia Pro Vita Sua" Dr. Newman wrote:
"We"—Mr. Hurrell Froude, brother of the historian
James Anthony Froude, being the other person—"set out in December 1832. It was during this expedition that my verses which are in the 'Apostolica' were written —a few, indeed, before it, but not more than one or two of them after it. At Whitechurch, while waiting for the down mail to Falmouth, I wrote the verses about 'My Guardian Angel' which begin with these words:

"'Are these the tracks of some unearthly friend?'"

It must be remembered that John Henry Newman had not yet entered the Catholic Church. It is strange that he should at this time have held the belief in a ministering spirit which is so marked in "The Dream of Gerontius."
In the sextette of this sonnet he says:

"Were I Christ's own, then fitly might I call
That vision real; for to the thoughtful mind
That walks with Him He half reveals His face;
But when on earth-stained souls such tokens fall,
These dare not claim as theirs what there they find,
Yet, not all hopeless, eye His boundless grace."

This vision, he says, "which haunted me,—the vision is more or less brought out in the whole series of compositions." "Gerontius" itself is more a "vision" than a "dream."

"The Pillar in the Cloud" was written in an orange-boat. "We were becalmed a whole week in the Straits of Bonifaccio. Then it was," he says in the "Apologia"—the finest model of modern English prose extant—"that I wrote 'Lead, Kindly Light,' which has since become well known. I was writing verses the whole time of my passage."

The "vision" of which he speaks he saw everywhere, and all his poems seem, in one way or other, to contain hints of the great poem to come; for there can be no doubt that "The Dream of Gerontius" is the culmination of his poetical moods. One cannot open any of his prose works without finding allusions to these eternal truths made so clear through the processes of the soul of a normal old man,—our young readers will please look up the derivation of Gerontius,¹ which is from the Greek,—but it is in his poems that we discover easily the germs of his poetical masterpiece. Even in the poems he loved we note the constant dwelling on the main theme of "The Dream"—Eternity. In 1889 Cardinal Newman was very ill. During his convalescence he asked that Faber's "Eternal Years" should be sung to him with musical accompaniment. He said that he would like to hear it when he came to die. It is a poem of sixteen stanzas, to be found in Faber's "Hymns." It begins:

¹ γέρων—ortos.

"How shalt thou bear the cross that now
So dread a weight appears?
Keep quietly to God, and think
Upon the eternal years.

Austerity is little help,
Although it sometimes cheers;
Thine oil of gladness is the thought
Of the eternal years."

"Novissima hora est!" Gerontius exclaims, "and I fain would sleep." He is thinking of the eternal hours and years in this last hour on earth.

At sea, in June, 1833, Newman had written some verses called "Hora Novissima":

"Whene'er goes forth Thy dread command,
And my last hour is nigh,
Lord, grant me in a Christian land,
As I was born, to die.

"I pray not, Lord, that friends may be,
Or kindred, standing by,— Choice blessing! which I leave to Thee
To grant me or deny."
"But let my falling limbs beneath
My Mother's smile recline,
And prayers sustain my laboring breath
From out her sacred shrine.

"And let the cross beside my bed
In its dread presence rest;
And let the absolving words be said
To ease a laden breast.

"Thou, Lord, where'er we lie, canst aid;
But He who taught His own
To live as one, will not upbraid
The dread to die alone."

The death of Gerontius was Newman's ideal Christian death, and Gerontius does not die alone; he is upborne, refreshed by the prayers of his friends. Of Newman's sacred songs, "The Pillar of the Cloud" is, as we know, put first by some critics. And yet for musical diction, for sweetness and all the beauty of artistic technique, the song of the soul in "The Dream" equals if not surpasses it.

"Take me away, and in the lowest deep,
There let me be,
And there in hope the lone night-watches keep,
Told out for me."

In "Verses on Various Occasions" there is the picture of the resigned souls expecting the Blessed Vision. "Waiting for the Morning" was written at Oxford, 1835. It begins:
“They are at rest;
We may not stir the heaven of their repose
With loud-voiced grief, or passionate request,
Or selfish plaints for those
Who in the mountain grots of Eden lie,
And hear the fourfold river as it passes by.”

By “Eden” Newman symbolized the paradise—the resting-place of souls—of the fourfold rivers. Here they patiently abide,

“And soothing sounds
Blend with the neighboring waters as they glide;
Posted along the haunted garden’s bounds
Angelic forms abide,
Echoing as words of watch, o’er lawn and grove,
The verses of that hymn which seraphs chant above.”

The fulness of higher meditation and knowledge is in the triumphant song of the Soul, but “Waiting for the Morning” contains its suggestion, just as “The Lady of Shalott” by Lord Tennyson contains the germ of the exquisite “Elaine.”

The dedication of “The Dream of Gerontius” reads, in English: “To the Most Beloved Brother, John Joseph Gordon, Priest of the Order of St. Philip de Neri, whose soul is in the Place of Refreshment. All Soul’s Day, 1865.”

The Rev. John Joseph Gordon, of the Oratory, was very dear to Newman, and his death was a great blow to him. But of all the Oratorians, the Cardinal especially loved Father Ambrose St. John, whose name he accentuates on the last page of the “Apologia.” Father St. John, who was of the Gordon family, died in 1875, and Newman suffered what he held to be his saddest bereavement. Ambrose St. John had been with him at Littlemore. Writing to Mr. Dering of the death of Father Ambrose St. John, he said: “I never had so great a loss. He had been my life under God for twenty-two years.” The dread of dying alone and the deep affection for friends—an affection that reaches the throne of God by prayer—tinge the whole structure of “The Dream.” They are part of Newman himself.

1 The word “refrigerium” was used for “refreshment,” “rest” in the epitaphs of the early Latin Christians.

Cardinal Newman died at Edgbaston Oratory, August 11, 1890; he was buried, at his own request, in the grave with Father Ambrose St. John. “‘The Dream of Gerontius’ was composed in great grief after the death of a dear friend.”

A careful study of “The Dream of Gerontius” will show how musical it is, and how delicately the music of the verse changes with the themes. The form of poetry, as we know, approaches music. If a poem is not musical in expression, its metres fail of producing the effect they are intended to produce. So musical is “The Dream of Gerontius” and so capable of being treated by the musicians, that various composers suggested the making of an oratorio of it. Dr. Elgar has done it. “An Ursuline,” in The Catholic World, for June, 1903, says: “Dr. Elgar, when a child, sat Sunday after Sunday in the organ-loft of St. George's Roman Catholic Church, Worcester, England, where his father had been organist for the long period of thirty-seven years. Subtly the spirit of the grand old church music was instilled into the boy.” Of “The Dream” Dr. Elgar said: “The poem has been soaking in my mind for at least eight years. All that time I had been gradually assimilating the thoughts of the author into my musical promptings.” In 1889 a copy of the poem, with the markings made by General Gordon, was presented to Dr. Elgar as a wedding gift. The markings of the heroic and devout Gordon especially interested him. The reading of this little book helped to make Dr. Elgar's fame, which is based solely on his masterpiece, the oratorio performed in London on June 6, 1903, in Westminster Cathedral. Richard Strauss is looked on by musicians as the master of what is called “tone-color”—a perfect harmony between the tone of the instrument and the music arranged for it. But the German and English critics declare that in “The Dream of Gerontius” Dr. Elgar has surpassed Richard Strauss. “The Demons’ Chorus,” says The Pall Mall Gazette, “may be regarded as one of the last words of musical audacity.” For the study of the music we suggest Dr. Jaeger's Analysis, printed by Novello in London and New York. Mr. Theodore Thomas, speaking of Dr. Elgar's “Dream of Gerontius,” said that it is the most important oratorio of recent times, not excepting Brahms’ Requiem. “‘Gerontius,'” he added, “is a lofty work, and, from a technical point of view, more masterly than Brahms ever dreamed of. It is by far the most important and satisfying modern work written for voices and orchestra."

It is understood that Cardinal Newman himself suggested that his poem should be set to music. The delicacy of his ear as to sounds is shown by the changes of the verse-music,—which is made up of accent, pause, and rhythm,—to fit the varying feeling of the work. If the student will scan the lines and reduce them to musical expression,—leaving out, of course, the quality of pitch, he can easily corroborate this.

\[
\text{Jesu, Maria, I am near to death,} \\
\text{And Thou art calling me.}
\]

This is in two-beat rhythm:

\[
\begin{array}{ccccccccccc}
\text{r} & \text{r} & \text{f} & \text{r} & \text{f} & \text{r} & \text{f} & \text{r} & \text{f} & \text{f} \\
\text{I} & \text{r} & \text{r} & \text{r} & \text{r} & \text{r} & \text{r} & \text{x} & \\ \end{array}
\]

The first syllable of "Jesu" is the anacrusis; the measure of the metre begins with the first accent. Whether this system of verse-notation or that of the usual scansion be followed, the meaning of the changing forms will be made plain. The system of verse-notation will be found more satisfactory in the metrical study of the poem. The second form of primary rhythm—that based on three beats in the measure—is effectively used. We find it in the Song of the Demons:

Low-born clods
Of brute earth,
They aspire,—
JOHN HENRY NEWMAN

Born in the city of London, February 21, 1801, son of Mr. John Newman (of the banking firm of Ramsbottom, Newman & Co.) and of Jemima Fourdrinier, his wife.

Went at an early age to Dr. Nicholas's school at Ealing, to the head of which he rapidly rose. Thence to Trinity College, Oxford, graduating in 1820.

In 1823 was elected to a Fellowship at Oriel.

In 1824 took Anglican orders and became curate of St. Clement's, Oxford.

In 1828 was appointed vicar of St. Mary the Virgin, Oxford, with the outlying chaplaincy of Littlemore.

In 1832 finished History of the Arians and went abroad. Made acquaintance with Dr. Wiseman in Rome; seized with fever in Sicily, but said, "I shall not die—I have a work to do in England"; returning homewards in an orange-boat bound for Marseilles, and within sight of Garibaldi's home at Caprera, wrote "Lead, Kindly Light."

On July 13, 1833, the Sunday after his return home, the Oxford movement was begun by Keble's sermon on National Apostasy. The issue of Tracts for the Times immediately followed; and in 1843 Mr. Newman published a volume of Parochial Sermons, to be followed by University Sermons and Sermons on Holy Days.

In 1841 the Vice-Chancellor and heads of houses at Oxford censured Mr. Newman’s Tract XC.

In 1843 he resigned St. Mary’s.

On October 9, 1845, was received into the Catholic Church at Littlemore by Father Dominic.

On November 1, 1845, was confirmed at Oscott by Cardinal Wiseman.

On October 28, 1846, arrived in Rome, and, after a short period of study, was ordained priest.

On Christmas Eve, 1847, he returned to England from Rome, to found the community of St. Philip de Neri.

In January, 1849, part of the Oratorian Community settled in Birmingham.

In 1849 took up temporary residence at Bilston, to nurse the poor during a visitation of cholera.

In April, 1849, founded the London Oratory, with Father Faber as rector.

On June 21, 1852, the case of Achilli against Dr. Newman came on for trial before Lord Campbell, and, after several days’ duration, resulted in a verdict of “guilty,” Dr. Newman being unjustly sentenced to a fine and mulcted in enormous costs. The Rev. John Joseph Gordon, to whom “The Dream of Gerontius” is dedicated, was of great assistance to Newman at this time.
In 1854 went to Dublin as rector of the newly founded Irish Catholic University, but resigned that post in 1858, and subsequently established a boys' school at Birmingham.

In 1864 Charles Kingsley made charges of untruthfulness against the Catholic clergy, which led to the writing of the Apologia Pro Vita Sua.

In December, 1877, was elected an Honorary Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford.

In 1865 he printed "The Dream of Gerontius."

In 1879 created Cardinal Deacon of the Holy Roman Church by Leo XIII.

On Monday, May 11, 1890, died at the Oratory, Edgbaston, Birmingham, England.
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

§ 1

GERONTIUS

JESU, MARIA—I am near to death,¹
And Thou art calling me; I know it now—
Not by the token of this faltering breath,
This chill at heart, this dampness on my brow,

As suggested in the Introduction, the musical character of the verse of "The Dream of Gerontius" is brought out more and more by careful study of the changes of the meaning of the poem and their expression. "The Dream" is a series of lyrics,—each lyric voicing its own feeling and sensitively tuned to that feeling. According to the scansion most in use in English, the first supplicating lyric may be classed as in pentameter iambic. Gerontius is yet in the body, and the rime, used solemnly, marks a difference—which has a delicate symbolism—between his utterances in the body and his utterances when his soul has left the body. What we call blank verse is used by the Spirit—rime disappears, but the rhythm remains the same. Using verse-notation, we find five accented notes in each line, if we consider the lines at all. There are two quarter-notes in each bar, which may be written as ¹See Notes, p. 67.

THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

(Jesu, have mercy! Mary, pray for me!)—
'Tis this new feeling, never felt before,
(Be with me, Lord, in my extremity!)
That I am going, that I am no more.
'Tis this strange innermost abandonment,
(Lover of souls! great God! I look to Thee.)
This emptying out of each constituent
And natural force, by which I come to be.
Pray for me, O my friends; a visitant
Is knocking his dire summons at my door,
The like of whom, to scare me and to daunt,
Has never, never come to me before;
'Tis death,—O loving friends, your prayers!—'tis
As though my very being had given way,
As though I was no more a substance now,
And could fall back on nought to be my stay,
(Help, loving Lord! Thou my sole Refuge, Thou,)
And turn no whither, but must needs decay
And drop from out the universal frame
Into that shapeless, scopeless, blank abyss,
That utter nothingness, of which I came:
This is it that has come to pass in me;
O horror! this it is, my dearest, this;
So pray for me, my friends, who have not strength to pray,
ASSISTANTS

Kyrie eleison, Christe eleison, Kyrie eleison.
Holy Mary, pray for him.
All holy Angels, pray for him.
Choirs of the righteous, pray for him.
Holy Abraham, pray for him.
St. John Baptist, St. Joseph, pray for him.
St. Peter, St. Paul, St. Andrew, St. John,
All Apostles, all Evangelists, pray for him.
All holy Disciples of the Lord, pray for him.
All holy Innocents, pray for him.
All holy Martyrs, all holy Confessors,
All holy Hermits, all holy Virgins,
All ye Saints of God, pray for him.

GERONTIUS

Rouse thee, my fainting soul, and play the man;
And through such waning span
Of life and thought as still has to be trod,
Prepare to meet thy God.
And while the storm of that bewilderment
Is for a season spent,
And, ere afresh the ruin on thee fall,
Use well the interval.

“Kyrie Eleison,” etc. The poet has retained the sound-form used in the Prayer-books, and he shows his musical taste by not changing it.
“Rouse thee,” etc. Gerontius concentrates all his vitality.
The effect is of nervous energy. The time is quickened and alternately slowed.
ASSISTANTS

Be merciful, be gracious; spare him, Lord.
Be merciful, be gracious; Lord, deliver him.

From the sins that are past;
   From thy frown and Thine ire;
   From the perils of dying;
   From any complying
   With sin, or denying
   His God, or relying
On self, at the last;
   From the nethermost fire
From all that is evil;
From power of the devil;
Thy servant deliver,
For once and for ever.

By Thy birth, and by Thy Cross,
Rescue him from endless loss;
By Thy death and burial,
Save him from a final fall;
By Thy rising from the tomb,
   By Thy mounting up above,
   By the Spirit's gracious love,
Save him in the day of doom.

"Be merciful," etc. The Assistants begin with the solemn chant of the Church, and change to the supplication of anxious human hearts:

or
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

GERONTIUS

Sanctus fortis, Sanctus Deus,
    De profundus oro te,
Miserere, Judex meus,
    Parce mihi, Domine.²
Firmly I believe and truly
    God is Three, and God is One;
And I next acknowledge duly
    Manhood taken by the Son.
And I trust and hope most fully
    In that Manhood crucified;
And each thought and deed unruly
    Do to death, as He has died.

"Sanctus fortis, Sanctus Deus," etc. This is the ecstasy of faith, hope, and love. It is three Acts in one, rapidly and forcibly expressed. The energy and strength of self-forgetfulness fail when he, still in the body, sighs:

    "I can no more; for now it comes again,"—

Note the musical effect of

    "And, crueller still,
    A fierce and restless fright begins to fill
    The mansion of my soul. And, worse and worse,
    Some bodily form of ill."
The pauses after "ill" express horror and weakness,—

²See Notes, p. 67.
Simply to His grace and wholly
   Light and life and strength belong,
And I love, supremely, solely,
   Him the holy, Him the strong.
Sanctus fortis, Sanctus Deus,
   De profundis oro te,
Miserere, Judex meus,
   Parce mihi, Domine.
And I hold in veneration,
   For the love of Him alone,
Holy Church, as His creation,
   And her teachings, as His own.
And I take with joy whatever
   Now besets me, pain or fear,
And with a strong will I sever
   All the ties which bind me here.
Adoration aye be given
   With and through the angelic host,
To the God of earth and heaven,
   Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.
Sanctus fortis, Sanctus Deus,
   De profundis oro te,
Miserere, Judex meus,
   Mortis in discrimine.³

I can no more; for now it comes again,
| That sense of ruin, which is worse than pain, |
| That masterful negation and collapse |

³See Notes, p. 68.
Of all that makes me man; as though I bent
Over the dizzy brink
Of some sheer infinite descent;
Or worse, as though
Down, down for ever I was falling through
The solid framework of created things,
And needs must sink and sink
Into the vast abyss.
And, crueller still,
A fierce and restless fright begins to fill
The mansion of my soul.
And, worse and worse,
Some bodily form of ill
Floats on the wind, with many a loathsome curse
Tainting the hallowed air, and laughs, and flaps
Its hideous wings,
And makes me wild with horror and dismay.
O Jesu, help! pray for me Mary, pray!
Some angel, Jesu! such as came to Thee
In Thine own agony.
Mary, pray for me.
Joseph, pray for me.

Assistants
Rescue him, O Lord, in this his evil hour,
As of old so many by Thy gracious power.—(Amen.)
Enoch and Elias from the common doom; (Amen.)
Noe from the waters in a saving home; (Amen.)

"Rescue him, O Lord," etc. The solemn chant again. Note the difference in metre between this and the "Novissima hora est; and I fain would sleep. The pain has wearied me." Note the ardor of the Priest's "Proficiscere, anima Christiana," etc.
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

Abraham from th’ abounding guilt of Heathenesse;
   (Amen.)
Job from all his multiform and fell distress; (Amen.)
Isaac, when his father’s knife was raised to slay;
   (Amen.)
Lot from burning Sodom on its judgment-day; (Amen.)
Moses from the land of bondage and despair; (Amen.)
Daniel from the hungry lions in their lair; (Amen.) 140
And the Children Three amid the furnace-flame;
   (Amen.)
Chaste Susanna from the slander and the shame;
   (Amen.)
David from Golia and the wrath of Saul; (Amen.)
And the two Apostles from their prison-thrall; (Amen.)
Thecla from her torments; (Amen.)
—so, to show Thy power,
Rescue this Thy servant in his evil hour.

GERONTIUS

Novissima hora est; 4 and I fain would sleep,
The pain has wearied me. . . . |Into Thy hands,
O Lord, into Thy hands . . . . |

THE PRIEST

Proficiscere, anima Christiana, de hoc mundo! 5
Go forth upon thy journey, Christian soul!
Go from this world! Go, in the name of God,
The omnipotent Father, who created thee!

4 See Notes, p. 68. 6 See Notes, p. 68.
Go, in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord,
Son of the living God, who bled for thee!
Go, in the name of the Holy Spirit, who Hath been poured out on thee! Go, in the name
Of Angels and Archangels; in the name
Of Thrones and Dominations; in the name
Of Princedoms and of Powers; and in the name
Of Cherubim and Seraphim, go forth!
Go, in the name of Patriarchs and Prophets;
And of Apostles and Evangelists,
Of Martyrs and Confessors; in the name
Of holy Monks and Hermits; in the name
Of holy Virgins; and all Saints of God,
Both men and women, go! Go on thy course;
And may thy place to-day be found in peace,
And may thy dwelling be the Holy Mount
Of Sion:—in the Name of Christ, our Lord.

§ 2

Soul of Gerontius

I went to sleep; and now I am refreshed.
A strange refreshment: for I feel in me
An inexpressive lightness, and a sense
Of freedom, as I were at length myself,

"I went to sleep," etc. The soul of Gerontius has left the body:
And ne'er had been before. How still it is!
I hear no more the busy beat of time,
No, nor my fluttering breath, nor struggling pulse;
Nor does one moment differ from the next.
I had a dream; yes:—some one softly said
"He's gone"; and then a sigh went round the room.
And then I surely heard a priestly voice
Cry "Subvenite"; and they knelt in prayer.
I seem to hear him still; but thin and low,
And fainter and more faint the accents come,
As at an ever-widening interval.
Ah! whence is this? What is this severance?
This silence pours a solitariness
Into the very essence of my soul;
And the deep rest, so soothing and so sweet,
Hath something too of sternness and of pain,
For it drives back my thoughts upon their spring
By a strange introversion, and perforce
I now begin to feed upon myself,
Because I have nought else to feed upon.

Am I alive or dead? I am not dead,
But in the body still; for I possess
A sort of confidence which clings to me,
That each particular organ holds its place
As heretofore, combining with the rest
Into one symmetry, that wraps me round,
And makes me man; and surely I could move,
Did I but will it, every part of me.
And yet I cannot to my sense bring home,
By very trial, that I have the power.
'Tis strange; I cannot stir a hand or foot,
I cannot make my fingers or my lips
By mutual pressure witness each to each,
Nor by the eyelid's instantaneous stroke
Assure myself I have a body still.
Nor do I know my very attitude,
Nor if I stand, or lie, or sit, or kneel.

So much I know, not knowing how I know,
That the vast universe, where I have dwelt,
Is quitting me, or I am quitting it.
Or I or it is rushing on the wings
Of light or lightning on an onward course,
And we e'en now are million miles apart.
Yet . . . is this peremptory severance
Wrought out in lengthening measurements of space,
Which grow and multiply by speed and me?
Or am I traversing infinity
By endless subdivision, hurrying back
From finite towards infinitesimal,
Thus dying out of the expansed world?

Another marvel: someone has me fast
Within his ample palm; 'tis not a grasp
Such as they use on earth, but all around
Over the surface of my subtle being,

*See Notes, p. 68.
As though I were a sphere, and capable
To be accosted thus, a uniform
And gentle pressure tells me I am not
Self-moving, but borne forward on my way.
And hark! I hear a singing; yet in sooth
I cannot of that music rightly say
Whether I hear or touch or taste the tones.
Oh what a heart-subduing melody!

ANGEL

My work is done,
My task is o'er,
And so I come,
Taking it home,
For the crown is won,
Alleluia.
For evermore.
My Father gave
In charge to me
This child of earth
E'en from its birth,
To serve and save,
Alleluia,
And saved is he.

"My work is done,
My task is o'er,"
is expressed with a joyous movement,—
This child of clay
To me was given,
To rear and train
By sorrow and pain
In the narrow way,
Alleluia,
From earth to heaven.

Soul

It is a member of that family
Of wondrous beings, who, ere the worlds were made,
Millions of ages back, have stood around
The throne of God: he never has known sin;
But through those cycles all but infinite,
Has had a strong and pure celestial life,
And born to gaze on th' unveiled face of God
And drank from the eternal Fount of truth,
And served Him with a keen ecstatic love.
Hark! he begins again.

Angel

O Lord, how wonderful in depth and height,
But most in man, how wonderful Thou art!
With what a love, what soft persuasive might Victorious o'er the stubborn fleshly heart,
Thy tale complete of saints Thou dost provide
To fill the thrones which angels lost through pride!
The Dream of Gerontius

He lay a grovelling babe upon the ground,
Polluted in the blood of his first sire,
With his whole essence shattered and unsound,
And, coiled around his heart, a demon dire,
Which was not of his nature, but had skill
To bind and form his opening mind to ill.

Then was I sent from heaven to set right
The balance in his soul of truth and sin,
And I have waged a long relentless fight,
Resolved that death-environed spirit to win,
Which from its fallen state, when all was lost,
Had been repurchased at so dread a cost.

Oh what a shifting parti-coloured scene
Of hope and fear, of triumph and dismay,
Of recklessness and penitence, has been
The history of that dreary, lifelong fray!
And oh the grace to nerve him and to lead,
How patient, prompt, and lavish at his need!

O man, strange composite of heaven and earth! ¹
Majesty dwarfed to baseness! fragrant flower
Running to poisonous seed! and seeming worth
Cloaking corruption! weakness mastering power!
Who never art so near to crime and shame,
As when thou hast achieved some deed of name;—

¹Compare the thought in "Hamlet"—Act II, Scene II.—
"What a piece of work is man!"
How should ethereal natures comprehend
   A thing made up of spirit and of clay,
Were we not tasked to nurse it and to tend,
   Linked one to one throughout its mortal day?
More than the Seraph in his height of place,
The Angel-guardian knows and loves the ransomed race.

SOUL

Now know I surely that I am at length
Out of the body: had I part with earth,
I never could have drunk those accents in,
And not have worshipped as a god the voice
That was so musical; but now I am
So whole of heart, so calm, so self-possessed,
With such a full content, and with a sense
So apprehensive and discriminant,
As no temptation can intoxicate.
Nor have I even terror at the thought
That I am clasped by such a saintliness.

ANGEL

All praise to Him, at whose sublime decree
   The last are first, the first become the last;
By whom the suppliant prisoner is set free,
   By whom proud first-borns from their thrones are cast,
Who raises Mary to be Queen of heaven,
While Lucifer is left, condemned and unforgiven.
§ 3

Soul

I will address him. Mighty one, my Lord,
My Guardian Spirit, all hail!

Angel

All hail, my child!
My child and brother, hail! what wouldest thou?

Soul

I would have nothing but to speak with thee
For speaking's sake. I wish to hold with thee
Conscious communion; though I fain would know
A maze of things, were it but meet to ask,
And not a curiousness.

Angel

You cannot now
Cherish a wish which ought not to be wished.

Soul

Then I will speak. I ever had believed
That on the moment when the struggling soul
Quitted its mortal case, forthwith it fell
Under the awful Presence of its God,
There to be judged and sent to its own place.
What lets me now from going to my Lord?
ANGEL

Thou art not let; but with extremest speed
Art hurrying to the Just and Holy Judge:
For scarcely art thou disembodied yet.
Divide a moment, as men measure time,
Into its million-million-millionth part,
Yet even less than that the interval
Since thou didst leave the body; and the priest
Cried “Subvenite,” 7 and they fell to prayer;
Nay, scarcely yet have they begun to pray.

For spirits and men by different standards mete
The less and greater in the flow of time.
By sun and moon, primeval ordinances—
By stars which rise and set harmoniously—
By the recurring seasons, and the swing,
This way and that, of the suspended rod
Precise and punctual, men divide the hours,
Equal, continuous, for their common use.
Not so with us in the immaterial world;
But intervals in their succession
Are measured by the living thought alone,
And grow or wane with its intensity.
And time is not a common property;
But what is long is short, and swift is slow,
And near is distant, as received and grasped
By this mind and by that, and every one
Is standard of his own chronology.

7 See Notes, p. 68.
And memory lacks its natural resting-points
Of years, and centuries, and periods.
It is thy very energy of thought
Which keeps thee from thy God.

Soul

Dear Angel, say,

Why have I now no fear at meeting Him?
Along my earthly life, the thought of death
And judgment was to me most terrible.
I had it aye before me, and I saw
The Judge severe e’en in the crucifix.
Now that the hour is come, my fear is fled;
And at this balance of my destiny,
Now close upon me, I can forward look
With a serenest joy.

Angel

It is because
Then thou didst fear, that now thou dost not fear.
Thou hast forestalled the agony, and so
For thee the bitterness of death is past.
Also, because already in thy soul
The judgment is begun. That day of doom,
One and the same for the collected world—
That solemn consummation for all flesh,
Is, in the case of each, anticipate
Upon his death; and, as the last great day
In the particular judgment is rehearsed,
So now too, ere thou comest to the Throne,
A presage falls upon thee, as a ray
Straight from the Judge, expressive of thy lot.
That calm and joy uprising in thy soul
Is first-fruit to thee of thy recompense,
And heaven begun.

§ 4

Soul

But hark! upon my sense
Comes a fierce hubbub, which would make me fear,
Could I be frightened.

Angel

We are now arrived
Close on the judgment court; that sullen howl
Is from the demons who assemble there.
It is the middle region, where of old
Satan appeared among the sons of God,
To cast his jibes and scoffs at holy Job.
So now his legions throng the vestibule,
Hungry and wild, to claim their property,
And gather souls for hell. Hist to their cry.

Soul

How sour and how uncouth a dissonance!
DEMONS

Low-born clods
Of brute earth,
They aspire
To become gods,
By a new birth,
And an extra grace,
And a score of merits.
As if aught
Could stand in place
Of the high thought,
And the glance of fire
Of the great spirits,
The powers blest,
The lords by right,
The primal owners,
Of the proud dwelling
And realm of light,—
Disposessed,
Aside thrust,
Chuck'd down,

By the sheer might

"Low-born clods," etc. The most marked change comes here. The solemnity and sweetness of the soul and the angel's music—their leit-motif—is easily discernible. Now come dissonances and discords,—the rapidity of jangled cymbals struck in scorn. The phrase "chucked down" has been censured as "inelegant." Its meaning and sound accord exactly with the spirit of the demoniac chorus.
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

Of a despot's will,
    Of a tyrant's frown. 430
Who after expelling
    Their hosts, gave,
Triumphant still,
And still unjust,
    Each forfeit crown
To psalm-droners,
    And canting groaners,
To every slave,
    And pious cheat,
And crawling knave,
    Who licked the dust
Under his feet.

ANGEL

It is the restless panting of their being;
Like beasts of prey, who, caged within their bars,
In a deep hideous purring have their life,
And an incessant pacing to and fro.

DEMONS

The mind bold
    And independent,
The purpose free,
    So we are told,
Must not think
    To have the ascendant.
What's a saint?
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

One whose breath
Doth the air taint
Before his death;
A bundle of bones,
Which fools adore,
Ha! ha!

When life is o'er,
Which rattle and stink,
E'en in the flesh.
We cry his pardon!

No flesh hath he;
Ha! ha!
For it hath died,
'Tis crucified
Day by day,

Afresh, afresh,
Ha! ha!

That holy clay,
Ha! ha!

This gains guerdon,
So priestlings prate,
Ha! ha!

Before the Judge,
And pleades and atones
For spite and grudge,
And bigot mood,
And envy and hate,
And greed of blood.
Soul

How impotent they are! and yet on earth
They have repute for wondrous power and skill;
And books describe, how that the very face
Of the Evil One, if seen, would have a force
Even to freeze the blood, and choke the life
Of him who saw it.

Angel

In thy trial-state
Thou hadst a traitor nestling close at home,
Connatural, who with the powers of hell
Was leagued, and of thy senses kept the keys,
And to that deadliest foe unlocked thy heart.
And therefore is it, in respect to man,
Those fallen ones show so majestical.
But, when some child of grace, angel or saint,
Pure and upright in his integrity
Of nature, meets the demons on their raid,
They scud away as cowards from the fight.
Nay, oft hath holy hermit in his cell,
Not yet disburdened of mortality,
Mocked at their threats and warlike overtures;
Or, dying, when they swarmed, like flies, around,
Defied them, and departed to his Judge.

Demons

Virtue and vice,
A knave's pretence.
'Tis all the same;
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

Ha! ha!
Dread of hell-fire,
Of the venomous flame,
A coward's plea.

Give him his price,
Saint though he be,

Ha! ha!
From shrewd good sense
He'll slave for hire;
Ha! ha!
And does but aspire
To the heaven above
With sordid aim,
And not from love.
Ha! ha!

Soul
I see not those false spirits; shall I see
My dearest Master, when I reach His throne;
Or hear, at least, His awful judgment-word
With personal intonation, as I now
Hear thee, not see thee, Angel? Hitherto
All has been darkness since I left the earth;
Shall I remain thus sight bereft all through My penance time? If so, how comes it then
That I have hearing still, and taste, and touch,
Yet not a glimmer of that princely sense
Which binds ideas in one, and makes them live?
ANGEL

Nor touch, nor taste, nor hearing hast thou now;
Thou livest in a world of signs and types,
The presentations of most holy truths,
Living and strong, which now encompass thee.
A disembodied soul, thou hast by right
No converse with aught else beside thyself;
But, lest so stern a solitude should load
And break thy being, in mercy are vouchsafed
Some lower measures of perception,
Which seem to thee, as though through channels brought,
Through ear, or nerves, or palate, which are gone.
And thou art wrapped and swathed around in dreams,
Dreams that are true, yet enigmatical;
For the belongings of thy present state,
Save through such symbols, come not home to thee.
And thus thou tell'st of space, and time, and size,
Of fragrant, solid, bitter, musical,
Of fire, and of refreshment after fire;
As (let me use similitude of earth,
To aid thee in the knowledge thou dost ask)—
As ice which blisters may be said to burn.
Nor hast thou now extension, with its parts
Correlative,—long habit cozens thee,—
Nor power to move thyself, nor limbs to move.
Hast thou not heard of those, who, after loss
Of hand or foot, still cried that they had pains

8 See Notes, p. 68.
In hand or foot, as though they had it still?
So is it now with thee, who hast not lost
Thy hand or foot, but all which made up man;
So will it be, until the joyous day
Of resurrection, when thou wilt regain
All thou hast lost, new-made and glorified.
How, even now, the consummated Saints
See God in heaven, I may not explicate.
Meanwhile let it suffice thee to possess
Such means of converse as are granted thee,
Though, till that Beatific Vision thou art blind;
For e'en thy purgatory, which comes like fire,
Is fire without its light.

Soul
His will be done!
I am not worthy e'er to see again
The face of day; far less His countenance
Who is the very sun. Nathless, in life,
When I looked forward to my purgatory,
It ever was my solace to believe,
That, ere I plunged amid th' avenging flame,
I had one sight of Him to strengthen me.

Angel
Nor rash nor vain is that presentiment;
Yes,—for one moment thou shalt see thy Lord.
Thus will it be: what time thou art arraigned
Before the dread tribunal, and thy lot
Is cast for ever, should it be to sit
On His right hand among His pure elect,
Then sight, or that which to the soul is sight,
As by a lightning-flash, will come to thee,
And thou shalt see, amid the dark profound,
Whom thy soul loveth, and would fain approach,—
One moment; but thou knowest not, my child,
What thou dost ask: that sight of the Most Fair
Will gladden thee, but it will pierce thee too.

Soul

Thou speakest darkly, Angel! and an awe
Falls on me, and a fear lest I be rash.

Angel

There was a mortal, who is now above
In the mid glory: he, when near to die,
Was given communion with the Crucified,—
Such, that the Master's very wounds were stamped
Upon his flesh; and, from the agony
Which thrilled through body and soul in that embrace
Learn that the flame of the Everlasting Love
Doth burn ere it transform. . . .

§ 5

. . . Hark to those sounds!
They come of tender beings angelical,
Least and most childlike of the sons of God.

*See Notes, p. 68.
FIRST CHOIR OF ANGELICALS

Praise to the Holiest in the height,
And in the depth be praise:
In all His words most wonderful;
Most sure in all His ways!

To us His elder race He gave
To battle and to win,
Without the chastisement of pain,
Without the soil of sin.

The younger son he willed to be
A marvel in his birth:
Spirit and flesh his parents were;
His home was heaven and earth.

The Eternal blessed His child, and armed,
And sent him hence afar,
To serve as champion in the field
Of elemental war.

"Praise to the Holiest in the height." A movement associated by English readers with the hymn particularly:

| - - | - - | - - |

or

\[
\begin{align*} \hline
\text{Notes} \\
\hline
| \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \text{Rest} | \end{align*}
\]
To be his Viceroy in the world
Of matter, and of sense;
Upon the frontier, towards the foe,
A resolute defence.

ANGEL

We now have passed the gate, and are within
The House of Judgment; and whereas on earth
Temples and palaces are formed of parts
Costly and rare, but all material,
So in the world of spirits nought is found,
To mould withal and form into a whole,
But what is immaterial; and thus
The smallest portions of this edifice,
Cornice, or frieze, or balustrade, or stair,
The very pavement is made up of life—
Of holy, blessed, and immortal beings,
Who hymn their Maker's praise continually.

SECOND CHOIR OF ANGELICALS

Praise to the Holiest in the height,
And in the depth be praise:
In all His words most wonderful;
Most sure in all His ways!

Woe to thee, man! for he was found
A recreant in the fight;
And lost his heritage of heaven,
And fellowship with light.
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

Above him now the angry sky,
   Around the tempest's din;
Who once had angels for his friends,
   Had but the brutes for kin.

O man! a savage kindred they;
   To flee that monster brood
He scaled the seaside cave, and clomb
   The giants of the wood.

With now a fear, and now a hope,
   With aids which chance supplied,
From youth to eld, from sire to son,
   He lived, and toiled, and died.

He dreaded his penance age by age;
   And step by step began
Slowly to doff his savage garb,
   And be again a man.

And quickened by the Almighty's breath,
   And chastened by His rod,
And taught by Angel-visitings,
   At length he sought his God:

And learned to call upon His name,
   And in His faith create
A household and a fatherland,
   A city and a state.

10 See Notes, p. 68.
Glory to Him who from the mire,
In patient length of days,
Elaborated into life
A people to His praise!

Soul

The sound is like the rushing of the wind—
The summer wind among the lofty pines;
Swelling and dying, echoing round about,
Now here, now distant, wild and beautiful;
While, scattered from the branches it has stirred,
Descend ecstatic odours.

Third Choir of Angelicals

Praise to the Holiest in the height,
And in the depth be praise:
In all His words most wonderful;
Most sure in all His ways!

The Angels, as beseeingly
To spirit-kind was given,
At once were tried and perfected,
And took their seats in heaven.

For them no twilight or eclipse;
No growth and no decay:
'Twas hopeless, all-ingulfsing night,
Or beatific day.
But to the younger race there rose
A hope upon its fall;
And slowly, surely, gracefully,
The morning dawned on all.

And ages, opening out, divide
The precious and the base,
And from the hard and sullen mass,
Mature the heirs of grace.

O man! albeit the quickening ray,
Lit from his second birth,
Makes him at length what once he was,
And heaven grows out of earth;

Yet still between that earth and heaven—
His journey and his goal—
A double agony awaits
His body and his soul.

A double debt he has to pay—
The forfeit of his sins,
The chill of death is past, and now
The penance-fire begins.

Glory to Him, who evermore
By truth and justice reigns;
Who tears the soul from out its case,
And burns away its stains!
Angel

They sing of thy approaching agony,
Which thou so eagerly didst question of:
It is the face of the Incarnate God
Shall smite thee with that keen and subtle pain;
And yet the memory which it leaves will be
A sovereign febrifuge to heal the wound;
And yet withal it will the wound provoke,
And aggravate and widen it the more.

Soul

Thou speakest mysteries; still methinks I know
To disengage the tangle of thy words:
Yet rather would I hear thy angel voice,
Than for myself be thy interpreter.

Angel

When then—if such thy lot—thou seest thy Judge,
The sight of Him will kindle in thy heart,
All tender, gracious, reverential thoughts.
Thou wilt be sick with love, and yearn for Him,
And feel as though thou couldst but pity Him,
That one so sweet should e'er have placed Himself
At disadvantage such, as to be used
So vilely by a being so vile as thee.
There is a pleading in His pensive eyes
Will pierce thee to the quick, and trouble thee.
And thou wilt hate and loathe thyself; for, though
Now sinless, thou wilt feel that thou hast sinned,
As never thou didst feel; and wilt desire
To slink away, and hide thee from His sight;
And yet wilt have a longing aye to dwell
Within the beauty of His countenance.
(And these two pains, so counter and so keen,—
The longing for Him, when thou seest Him not;
The shame of self at thought of seeing Him,—
Will be thy veriest, sharpest purgatory.

Soul

My soul is in my hand: I have no fear,—
In His dear might prepared for weal or woe.
But hark! a grand mysterious harmony:
It floods me, like the deep and solemn sound
Of many waters.

Angel

We have gained the stairs
Which rise towards the Presence-chamber; there
A band of mighty Angels keep the way
On either side, and hymn the Incarnate God.

Angels of the Sacred Stair

Father, whose goodness none can know, but they
Who see Thee face to face,
By man hath come the infinite display
Of Thy victorious grace;
But fallen man—the creature of a day—
Skills not that love to trace.
It needs, to tell the triumph Thou has wrought,
An Angel’s deathless fire, an Angel’s reach of thought.

It needs that very Angel, who with awe,
Amid the garden shade,
The great Creator in His sickness saw,
Soothed by a creature’s aid,
And agonised, as victim of the Law
Which He Himself had made;

For who can praise Him in His depth and height,
But he who saw Him reel amid that solitary fight?

Soul
Hark! for the lintels of the presence-gate
Are vibrating and echoing back the strain.

Fourth Choir of Angelicals
Praise to the Holiest in the height,
And in the depth be praise:
In all His words most wonderful;
Most sure in all his ways!

The foe blasphemed the Holy Lord,
As if he reckoned ill,
In that he placed His puppet man
The frontier place to fill.

For even in his best estate,
With ampest gifts endued,
A sorry sentinel was he,
A being of flesh and blood.
As though a thing, who for his help
Must needs possess a wife,
Could cope with those proud rebel hosts,
Who had angelic life.

And when, by blandishment of Eve,
That earth-born Adam fell,
He shrieked in triumph, and he cried,
"A sorry sentinel;
The Maker by His word is bound,
Escape or cure is none;
He must abandon to his doom,
And slay His darling son."

ANGEL

And now the threshold, as we traverse it,
Utters aloud its glad responsive chant.

FIFTH CHOIR OF ANGELICALS

Praise to the Holiest in the height,
And in the depth be praise:
In all His words most wonderful;
Most sure in all His ways!

O loving wisdom of our God!
When all was sin and shame,
A second Adam to the fight
And to the rescue came.
O wisest love! that flesh and blood
Which did in Adam fail,
Should strive afresh against the foe,
Should strive and should prevail;

And that a higher gift than grace
Should flesh and blood refine,
God's Presence and His very Self,
And Essence all divine.

O generous love! that He who smote
In man for man the foe,
The double agony in man
For man should undergo;

And in the garden secretly,
And on the cross on high,
Should teach his brethren and inspire
To suffer and to die.

§ 6

ANGEL
Thy judgment now is near, for we are come
Into the veiled presence of our God.

SOUL
I hear the voices that I left on earth.
ANGEL

It is the voice of friends around thy bed,
Who say the "Subvenite" with the priest.
Hither the echoes come; before the Throne
Stands the great Angel of the Agony,
The same who strengthened Him, what time He knelt
Lone in the garden shade, bedewed with blood.
That Angel best can plead with Him for all
Tormented souls, the dying and the dead.

ANGEL OF THE AGONY

Jesu! by that shuddering dread which fell on Thee;
Jesu! by that cold dismay which sickened Thee;
Jesu! by that pang of heart which thrilled in Thee;
Jesu! by that mount of sins which crippled Thee;
Jesu! by that sense of guilt which stifled Thee;
Jesu! by that innocence which girdled Thee;
Jesu! by that sanctity which reigned in Thee;
Jesu! by that Godhead which was one with Thee;
Jesu! spare these souls which are so dear to Thee,
Who in prison, calm and patient, wait for Thee;
Hasten, Lord, their hour, and bid them come to Thee,
To that glorious Home, where they shall ever gaze on Thee.

SOUL

I go before my Judge. Ah! . . .

"Angel of the Agony." Note the solemn and pathetic rhythm effect.
THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

ANGEL

... Praise to His Name!
The eager spirit has darted from my hold,
And, with the intemperate energy of love,
Flies to the dear feet of Emmanuel;
But, ere it reach them, the keen sanctity,
Which with its effluence, like a glory, clothes
And circles round the Crucified, has seized,
And scorched, and shrivelled it; and now it lies
Passive and still before the awful Throne.
O happy, suffering soul! for it is safe,
Consumed, yet quickened, by the glance of God.

Soul

Take me away, and in the lowest deep
There let me be,
And there in hope the lone night-watches keep,
Told out for me.
There, motionless and happy in my pain,
Lone, not forlorn,—
There will I sing my sad perpetual strain,
Until the morn.

"Take me away, and in the lowest deep,
There let me be," etc.
The catalexis—pause—is finely used here:
There will I sing, and soothe my stricken breast,
    Which ne’er can cease
To throb, and pine, and languish, till possest
    Of its Sole Peace.
There will I sing my absent Lord and Love:—
    Take me away,
That sooner I may rise, and go above,
And see Him in the truth of everlasting day.

§ 7

ANGEL

Now let the golden prison ope its gates,
Making sweet music, as each fold revolves
Upon its ready hinge.  And ye great powers,
Angels of Purgatory, receive from me
My charge, a precious soul, until the day,
When, from all bond and forfeiture released,
I shall reclaim it for the courts of light.

SOULS IN PURGATORY

1. Lord, Thou hast been our refuge: in every generation;
2. Before the hills were born, and the world was: from age to age Thou art God.
3. Bring us not, Lord, very low: for Thou hast said, Come back again, ye sons of Adam.

\[\text{See Notes, p. 68.}\]
4. A thousand years before Thine eyes are but as yesterday: and as a watch of the night which is come and gone.

5. The grass springs up in the morning: at evening-tide it shrivels up and dies.

6. So we fail in Thine anger: and in Thy wrath we are troubled.

7. Thou hast set our sins in Thy sight: and our round of days in the light of Thy countenance.

9. In Thy morning we shall be filled with Thy mercy: we shall rejoice and be in pleasure all our days.

10. We shall be glad according to the days of our humiliation: and the years in which we have seen evil.

11. Look, O Lord, upon Thy servants and on Thy work: and direct their children.

12. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and the work of our hands, establish Thou it.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.
Softly and gently, dearly-ransomed soul,
In my most loving arms I now enfold thee,
And, o’er the penal waters, as they roll,
I poise thee, and I lower thee, and hold thee.

And carefully I dip thee in the lake,\textsuperscript{12}
And thou, without a sob or a resistance,
Dost through the flood thy rapid passage take,
Sinking deep, deeper into the dim distance.

Angels, to whom the willing task is given,
Shall tend, and nurse, and lull thee, as thou liest;
And Masses on the earth, and prayers in heaven,
Shall aid thee at the Throne of the Most Highest.

Farewell, but not for ever! brother dear,
Be brave and patient on thy bed of sorrow;
Swiftly shall pass thy night of trial here,
And I will come and wake thee on the morrow.

"Softly and gently, dearly ransomed soul,
In my most loving arms I now enfold thee," etc.

\textsuperscript{12} See Notes, p. 69.
NOTES

1. (p. 25.) Gerontius dreams that he is dying. He has not strength to pray. He hears the persons near his bed praying for him, in the language prescribed by the Church, "The Litany for the Dying." The three opening invocations are in Greek, "Kyrie Eleison" ("Lord, have mercy"), "Christe Eleison" ("Christ, have mercy"), "Kyrie Eleison" ("Lord, have mercy"). The next invocation in the Litany is "Sancta Maria, Ora pro eo," which Cardinal Newman translates into English. With the exception of the first three and the last two invocations, the Litany is in Latin. The Litany is too long for the purpose of the poem, and the author has translated into English some of the invocations that would naturally strike the "fainting soul." "Be merciful" ("Propitius esto"), the assistants continue, still using parts of the Litany as versified by Cardinal Newman.

2. (p. 29.) Holy Strong One, Holy God,
From the depth I pray to Thee.
Mercy, O my Judge, for me;
Spare me, Lord.

In the Proper for the season of Good Friday the passage which suggested this reads, in Greek and Latin:

1st choir. Agios O Theos (O Holy God).
2d choir. Sanctus Deus (O Holy God).
1st choir. Agios Ischyros (O Holy Strong One).
2d choir. Sanctus Fortis (O Holy Strong One).
3. (p. 30.) Death dissolves me.

4. (p. 32.) The final hour is here. "Into Thy hands." The whole of this prayer for the dying is: "Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit. O Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. Holy Mary, pray for me. O Mary, Mother of grace, Mother of mercy, do thou protect me from the enemy and receive me at the hour of death."

5. (p. 32.) "Go forth, O Christian soul, from this world." These words begin the prayer of the priest, recited while the soul is departing from the body. It is paraphrased in English by the Cardinal.

6. (p. 35.) "Another marvel." According to the teaching of the Catholic Church, each soul is given at its birth in charge of a Guardian Angel. It is this angel that sings, "My work is done." "Alleluia" is from two Hebrew words united by a hyphen. It means "Praise the Lord." St. John in the Apocalypse says that he heard the angels singing it in heaven. It occurs in the last fifty Psalms and in Tobias.

7. (p. 41.) When the soul has departed, the priest says the prayer beginning "Subvenite, Sancti Dei; occurrite Angeli Domini," etc. ("Come to his assistance, ye saints of God," etc.).

9. (p. 51.) St. Francis d'Assisi. In 1224, while on Mount Alvernus, keeping a fast of forty days in honor of St. Michael, a seraph appeared and marked the hands, feet, and right side of St. Francis with the five wounds of Our Lord's Passion.

10. (p. 54.) "Dreed," from the old English verb "dreogan," to suffer.

11. (p. 64.) This appeal is paraphrased by the author from the Psalms. The words at the end are translated from the Lesser Doxology: "Gloria Patri et Filio et Spiritui Sancto."
Sicut erat in principio et nunc, et in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.” The Greater Doxology begins: “Gloria in excelsis Deo.” “Doxology” is from two Greek words meaning “praise” and a “discourse.”

12. (p. 66.) In Dante’s Vision of Purgatory (Canto I.) hell is spoken of as a “cruel sea,” and the water surrounding the Island of Purgatory as the “better waves.” The spirit of Gerontius is dropped into these “better waves” — “miglior acqua.”

“Per correr miglior acqua alza le vele
Omai la navicella del mio ingegno
Che lascia dietro a se mar si crudele.”

“O’er better waves to speed her rapid course,
The light bark of my genius lifts her sail,
Well pleased to leave so cruel sea behind.”

—Gary’s Translation.
JUST PUBLISHED

A HISTORY OF ENGLAND FOR CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

BY
E. WYATT-DAVIES, M.A.
TRINITY COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE

WITH FOURTEEN MAPS IN THE TEXT

xvi + 540 pages Crown 8vo Price $1.10

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.
91 AND 93 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
1903
The need of a text-book of English History for secondary schools and colleges, which, while giving a narrative of political events, should at the same time emphasize matters of special interest to Catholics, has been frequently pointed out by Catholic head-masters and teachers. This need it is the object of the present volume to meet. To avoid misconceptions, however, I take this opportunity to point out that this book is a political and not an ecclesiastical history.

The book, then, is not an attempt to summarize the history of the Catholic Church in England, and for this reason many facts of the deepest interest and significance are omitted. Where I have had occasion to touch on religious questions I have endeavored to avoid a controversial tone, believing it to be advisable, on grounds both of religion and of patriotism, that young Catholics should not be encouraged to view the facts of England's development through an atmosphere of controversy. At the same time, in writing an account of the Reformation, I have not hesitated to express an opinion on the conduct of its promoters; but I have tried to present a candid statement of the changes which were carried out, and I believe that, in commenting adversely on the means employed by the authors of the Reformation in England, I have not gone beyond what has been said by non-Catholic writers of authority in matters of history. In general it has been my aim to avoid as much as possible the expression of opinions, and to give a simple statement of facts. In the investigation of these a Catholic writer must apply the same rules of evidence which are valid for all students of history.
reviving the contest with Wilkes. In 1768 Wilkes was elected for Middlesex, but was arrested and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. He published an attack on Lord Weymouth, secretary of war, and for so doing was expelled from the House. He was twice re-elected by the electors of Middlesex; on each occasion the House refused to allow him to sit, and at last ordered his opponent, Colonel Luttrell, who had received 300 votes against 1100 recorded for Wilkes, to take the seat. The decision raised vehement opposition both in Parliament and in the country.

The Ministry was now hopelessly discredited. Chatham had definitely resigned, and Grafton thus lost the prestige of his tacit support. In 1769 the “Letters of Junius” began to appear in the Public Advertiser. Their authorship, although with strong presumption ascribed to Sir Philip Francis, has never been cleared up. They were, however, the work of some one who had access to information of first-rate importance, and the skill and knowledge shown in the fierce attacks of Junius on leading statesmen produced a profound sensation. In 1770 Chatham, who had returned to politics, attacked the Government on its policy towards America and its treatment of Wilkes, and Grafton resigned.

7. Events leading to the Declaration of Independence (1770–1776).—The Opposition was too much divided to form a ministry, and George skilfully utilised its dissensions to raise Lord North to the position of prime minister. George had now freed himself from the ascendancy of the “Revolution Families,” and with the support of the Tories and of those Whigs whom he had won over, he now began a period of personal rule such as no sovereign had attempted since the Revolution. Lord North, an able statesman of the second rank, relying on the king and following the royal dictates, was able to maintain himself in power for twelve years. The immense patronage of the Crown, exercised in the gift of offices and pensions, was wielded by the king to secure a majority in the Commons. George watched the debates with the keenness of an old parliamentarian, and distributed his Great Britain should invite the nations of the world to a friendly rivalry in the arts of peace, and that the Great International Exhibition of 1851, held in London, should form the climax of a period of national progress due largely to the international exchange of commodities.

13. Fall of the Russell Ministry (1852).—Early in 1851 it had become clear that the Ministry could not last much longer. It was defeated on a financial question in the Commons, and only the refusal of the Peelite Conservatives to work with the Protectionist Conservatives enabled Russell to retain power. A crisis was produced by Palmerston's action with reference to France. The spectre of communism had alarmed the French middle classes, and Louis Napoleon, nephew of the great emperor, took advantage of this to get himself elected President of the Republic (1848). In 1851, in defiance of his oath to the constitution, Napoleon carried out a coup d'état, and established a military despotism. His action was, however, ratified by a vote of the French people, and he became emperor, as Napoleon III.

Palmerston, without consulting the other ministers, expressed to the French ambassador in London his concurrence with Napoleon's action. Lord John Russell at once demanded an explanation of this indiscreet action, and, as his defence was unsatisfactory, Palmerston was dismissed. The Ministry did not long survive, and, mainly through Palmerston's action, the Government was defeated over a Militia Bill, and at once resigned.

CHIEF EVENTS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Event</th>
<th>A.D.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chartist riots</td>
<td>1839</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Penny Post established</td>
<td>1839</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First Afghan War</td>
<td>1838-1842</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First Chinese War</td>
<td>1839-1842</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Newman becomes a Catholic</td>
<td>1845</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Repeal of the Corn Laws</td>
<td>1846</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Restoration of the Catholic Hierarchy</td>
<td>1850</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ecclesiastical Titles Bill</td>
<td>1851</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Great Exhibition</td>
<td>1851</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Sir Robert Peel had died in 1850.
A LIST OF WORKS ON ENGLISH PUBLISHED BY
LONGMANS, GREEN, & CO.
91 AND 93 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

GRAMMAR AND COMPOSITION.

By Charles Sears Baldwin, Ph.D., Yale University. Crown 8vo. 460 pages. $1.35*

Contents: Introduction.—Part I. Prose Composition. A. Logical Composition (Persuasion and Exposition): 1. The Elements of Logical Composition: (i) The Composition as a Whole; (ii) The Paragraph; (iii) The Sentence. 2. Exposition: (i) Scope; (ii) Aim; (iii) Method; (iv) Literary Form. 3. Persuasion: (i) Scope; (ii) Argument; (iii) Literary Forms. B. Literary Composition (Narration and Description): 1. The Elements of Literary Composition (i) Unity; (ii) Coherence; (iii) Emphasis. 2. Narration: (i) Character; (ii) Plot; (iii) Literary Forms. 3. Description: (i) Definition; The Limits of Description; (ii) The Details of the Whole (Unity and Emphasis); (iii) The Mechanism (Coherence).—Part II. Prose Diction. A. Usage. B. Style: (i) The Personal Use of Language, or Originality; (ii) Elegance; (iii) Directness, or Force; (iv) The Balance of Elegance and Force in Classic Prose; (v) Harmony; (vi) Sincerity.—Appendix. 1. Themes and Exercises: Notes, References, Examples. (Throughout these Notes, etc., the section numbers correspond with those of the text.) 2. Subjects for Expository Essays: (i) Reports; (ii) Essays Supported by Research; (iii) Essays Supported by Extended Research; (iv) Essays Involving Consultation of Authorities; (v) Longer Essays for Advanced Students: Definition, Division, Compilation. An Example of Simple Research; The Writing of Criticism. 3. Themes and Exercises, Notes, Examples and References. 4. The Elements of Literary Composition. 5. Narration: Six Versions of a Tale. Plots for Stories. 6. Description: Directions for a Course of Frequent Short Themes. 7. Prose Diction. Directions for Translation.—Longer Selections for Study.—Index.

Baldwin—The Expository Paragraph and Sentence.

An Elementary Manual of Composition for college classes, by Charles Sears Baldwin, Assistant Professor of Rhetoric in Yale University. 16mo. $0.50*

Matthews—The Philosophy of the Short-Story.

By Brander Matthews, D.C.L., Professor of Dramatic Literature in Columbia University. 16mo. 83 pages. $0.50.
Longmans' English Grammar.

Edited by George J. Smith, M.A., Ph.D., member of the Board of Examiners, Department of Education, New York City. Joint author of Maxwell and Smith's "Writing in English." 12mo. 343 pages. 65 cents net. By mail, 70 cents.

Contents: Part I. Parts of Speech.—Part II. Classification and Inflection.—Part III. Analysis of Sentences.—Part IV. History and Derivation—Notes for Teachers—Index.

In the preparation of this book the constant aim has been to make the language clear and simple; to approach each point through exercises and illustrations, so that the pupil "may learn by doing"; to arrange the points so that the subject develops easily and naturally, and to conceive and state grammatical principles in a sound and scholarly manner.

Especially attention is invited to the simple yet comprehensive first view presented in Part I.; to the treatment of the subjunctive mood, and of verbals, and to the fact that formal rules and definitions, clearly and succinctly stated, are given an important place, and yet are never permitted to usurp the place of exercises for illustration and application.

It is technical grammar, intended to be used in the last two years of the grammar school, and thoroughly fitting pupils to take up their high school work in the classics.

The avoidance of needless particularity and of technical puzzles, and the constant approach to the grammatical point of view by way of concrete examples, make this text-book an effective aid to the teacher who desires to impart the essentials of Grammar intelligently and successfully. The many teachers who have used Longman's School Grammar will recognize this as being based on that well-known work of David Salmon which is characterized by a notably clear and inductive development, by wealth of illustration, and by simplicity of statement. All the excellencies of the old book have been retained in the new, and such added improvements have been introduced as appeared to be called for.

J. V. Calhoun, Supt. of Schools, Baton Rouge, La.:—"It is a combination of what is essentially good in the old standard grammars, and the best methods lately adopted for making plain the grammatical principles of our language."

The Hon. Charles R. Skinner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, New York:—"It makes me wish that I could go to school again."

Martin Simpson, Superintendent of Schools, Wadena, Minn.:—"I am especially interested in the simple and clear language used in its pages, and the natural way in which the subject is approached and developed. The selections for study are profuse, and of the very best literature, so that a study of the text is almost equivalent to a study of classics in connection with the study of grammar."
Longmans’ School Grammar.

This Grammar furnishes a thorough preparation for the grammatical study of the modern languages and the classics, and is recommended for the first year in the High School course where advanced work is required.

It is based on the most approved modern principles of language and pedagogy, and contains all the essentials of Grammar made as simple and easy as possible without sacrifice of accuracy.

Samuel Thurber, of the Girls’ High School, Boston:—“It is simply a perfect Grammar.”

Isaac Thomas, Principal of High School, Burlington, Va.:—“It is the best working English Grammar I have ever used, or even seen, and just such a book as—in my judgment—any good teacher would want to use.”

J. B. Ragan, Principal of Edison School, Denver, Col.:—“My seventh and eighth grades have gained more knowledge of grammar since the time they took up Longmans’ than they had gained altogether before that time.”

Longmans’ School Grammar has been adopted for use in the Public Schools of New York, Baltimore, Pawtucket, Tacoma, Denver, Westfield, Mass.; Middletown, Conn.; Dubuque, Ia.; Wilmington, Del.; Bloomfield, N. J.; New Brunswick, N. J., etc., etc. It is also in use in many of the leading preparatory schools, such as Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn; Dr. Sach’s School, New York; St. Mark’s School, Southboro, Mass.; St. Paul’s School, Concord, N. H., etc.

Longmans’ Briefer Grammar.

By DAVID SALMON. 12mo. 128 pages. $0.35*

Longmans’ Briefer Grammar consists of Parts I. and II. of the School Grammar, with the text partially revised, and extends through the work usually required in the seventh year.
Longmans’ School Composition.

By David Salmon. Crown 8vo. 310 pages. $0.80*

Longmans’ School Composition is what its name implies. Its rules and general hints upon the correct and literary use of English in writing and composition are everywhere fortified by examples from the best authorities.

Byron Groce, Boston Latin School:—"I like Longmans’ School Composition very much. It is the best book of its sort I have ever seen."

Professor Edw. M. Traber, State College, Fort Collins, Col.:—"I think that it is the finest book of its sort I have ever seen. It is so scholarly, thorough, and sensible. I read and reread the book, finding at each inspection some newer and better points."

Longmans’ Junior School Composition.

By David Salmon. A first book on English Composition for Junior Classes. Crown 8vo. 104 pages. $0.30*

This book is identical with Part I. of Longmans’ School Composition, with "Notes for Teachers" added.

THE SWAN SHAKESPEARE.

An entirely new illustrated series for use in schools, with introductions and notes, specimen examination questions, etc. The following volumes are now ready. Each, $0.35.

As You Like It. Macbeth.
Henry V. Merchant of Venice.
Julius Cæsar. Richard II.
King John. The Tempest.

J. W. Travell, Principal of Stillman High School, Plainfield, N. J.:—"I am glad to receive this inexpensive text in your new Shakespeare series, and to find it of such high character in the clearness of the printed pages and in carefulness and fulness of annotation."
ENGLISH LITERATURE, SELECTIONS, ETC.

By Thomas Arnold, M.A., of University College, Oxford; Fellow of the Royal University of Ireland, and Professor of English Language and Literature in the University College, Stephen's Green, Dublin. Seventh Edition, Revised and in part Re-written (1897). With an Appendix of English Metres, and Index. Crown 8vo. 672 pages. $2.00*

A standard work, used in many schools and colleges in England and America, among which may be mentioned the Georgetown University at Washington, and the College of the City of New York, where the work has recently been adopted for class use.

The first 500 pages are taken up with a concise history of English literature by periods and authors. Then follows a "critical section" of a hundred or more pages in which English literature is considered not in sequence of time, but affinity of subjects. Epic Poetry, Heroic Poetry, Narrative Poetry, Satirical Poetry, Pastoral Poetry, Lyrical Poetry, Prose, Fiction, Oratory, History, Theology, Political Science, and Criticism, are each given a section. An Appendix and Index complete the volume.

Bacon—The Essays.

Text only, with Index. 16mo. 262 pages. $0.75*

A work alike convenient for use in school classes, and attractive to the general reader. The introduction is a scholarly discussion of Bacon's Life and Work.

Marlowe—Tragedy of Dr. Faustus.

With Introduction and Notes by Wilhelm Wagner, Ph.D., Professor at the Johanneum, Hamburg. (London Series of English Classics.) 16mo. 180 pages. $0.60*

Dobson—A Handbook of English Literature.

By Austin Dobson. New edition, revised, with new chapters, and extended to the present time by W. Hall Griffin, B.A., Professor of English Language and Literature at Queen's College, London. Crown 8vo. 400 pages. $2.50

Higginson—Short Studies of American Authors.

By Thomas Wentworth Higginson. 16mo. Cloth. $0.50

A little volume of biographical studies of Hawthorne, Poe, Thoreau, Howells, and others, suited for reading in upper grades.

Jonson—Every Man in his Humour.

Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Henry B. Wheatley, F.S.A., author of "Round About Piccadilly and Pall Mall," etc. (London Series of English Classics.) 16mo. 272 pages. $0.75*

By R. McWilliam, B.A., Inspector to the London School Board. Complete in one volume. $1.35* New Edition

Five Parts, each part sold separately, viz.:

PART I.—FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO CHAUCER. 12mo. 122 pages. $0.30*
PART II.—FROM CHAUCER TO SHAKESPEARE. 12mo. 130 pages. $0.30*
PART III.—FROM BEN JONSON TO LOCKE. 12mo. 124 pages. $0.30*
PART IV.—FROM SWIFT TO COWPER. 12mo. 132 pages. $0.30*
PART V.—FROM BURKE TO THE PRESENT TIME. 12mo. 162 pages. $0.30*

This volume is the outcome of an attempt to place in the hands of pupil, teachers, and other young students, a simple and interesting story of the great English writers.

It is meant to give a picture of the progress of English literature from its first rude beginnings, through its times of alternate flourishing and languor, and to show its varying aims in poetry and philosophy and divinity.

In giving account of the lives of writers, special care has been taken, wherever it was possible, to trace the history of their youth and of the influences which guided and moulded them; as only the best writers have been chosen, so special attention has been directed only upon their most excellent work. To kindle admiration in the minds of young students is for them more immediately beneficial; the critical spirit will come later with fuller knowledge and riper judgment.

Journal of Education:—"The account of the lives of the chief English writers is interesting and accurate, while the illustrative extracts from their works are chosen with taste and judgment, and woven into the narrative with skill. . . .

Mr. McWilliam evidently knows and loves his subject, and it will not be his fault if his readers do not in the end also know and love it."

Longmans' British Classics.

A New Series, Edited for Use in Schools. The volumes now ready include "Macaulay's Essay on Clive," "William Pitt," "The Earl of Chatham," "Addison." 12mo. Each, $0.50*

Edited, with Introduction and Notes, for Use in Elementary Schools. By S. Hales. Fourth Edition. 12mo. 232 pages. $0.50*
LONGMANS' ENGLISH CLASSICS

A series designed for use in secondary schools in accordance with the system of study recommended and outlined by the National Committee of Ten, and in direct preparation for the uniform entrance requirements in English, now adopted by the principal American colleges and universities. Each volume contains full Notes, Introductions, "Suggestions for Teachers and Students," with bibliographies, and, in many cases, lists of topics recommended for further reading or study, subjects for themes and compositions, specimen examination papers, etc. It is therefore hoped that the series will contribute largely to the working out of sound methods of teaching English. Crown 8vo. Edited by GEORGE RICE CARPENTER, A.B., Professor of Rhetoric and English Composition in Columbia University.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THE SERIES.

Prof. Barrett Wendell, Harvard University
Prof. George Pierce Baker, Harvard University
Prof. William Lyon Phelps, Yale University
Prof. Albert S. Cook, Yale University
Dr. Charles Sears Baldwin, Yale University
Bliss Perry, Formerly of Princeton University
Prof. Brander Matthews, Columbia University
Prof. George Edward Woodberry, Columbia University
Prof. William P. Trent, Barnard College
Prof. George R. Carpenter, Columbia University
Mr. William T. Brewster, Columbia University
Dr. G. C. D. Odell, Columbia University
Prof. Robert Herrick, University of Chicago
Prof. Robert Morss Lovett, University of Chicago
Prof. John Matthews Manly, University of Chicago
Prof. Fred Newton Scott, University of Michigan
Prof. Edward Everett Hale, Jr., Union College
Prof. Charles F. Richardson, Dartmouth College
Prof. Francis B. Gummere, Haverford College
Mr. Herbert Bates, Brooklyn M. T. High School, New York
Prof. Mary A. Jordan, Smith College
Rev. Huber Gray Buehler, Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn.
Mr. Percival Chubb, Ethical Culture Schools, N. Y.
Mr. James Greenleaf Croswell, Brearley School, N. Y.
Mr. Wilson Farrand, Newark Academy, N. J.
Dr. D. O. S. Lowell, Roxbury Latin School, Boston
Supt. William H. Maxwell, New York
Mr. Edwin L. Miller, Englewood (Ill.) High School
Prof. S. C. Hart, Wellesley College
Dr. Lewis B. Semple, Brooklyn Commercial High School, N. Y.
Longmans’ English Classics.—Continued.

Prescribed for examinations as noted below.

Burke’s Speech on Conciliation with America.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., L.H.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature in Yale University.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40
[For Study, 1903 to 1908.]

Carlyle’s Essay on Burns.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Wilson Farrand, A.M., Associate Principal of the Newark Academy, Newark, N. J.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40
[For Reading, 1903, 1904, 1905.]

Coleridge’s The Rime of the Ancient Mariner.
Cloth, $0.40; boards, $0.30
[For Reading, 1903 to 1908.]

Cooper’s The Last of the Mohicans.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Charles F. Richardson, Winkley Professor of the English Language and Literature in Dartmouth College.
Cloth, $0.60; boards, $0.50

Defoe’s History of the Plague in London.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Professor G. R. Carpenter, of Columbia University.
Cloth, $0.75

De Quincey’s Flight of a Tartar Tribe.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Charles Sears Baldwin, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Rhetoric in Yale University.
Cloth, $0.40; boards, $0.30

Dryden’s Palamon and Arcite.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by William Tenney Brewster, A.M., Tutor in Rhetoric in Columbia University.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

George Eliot’s Silas Marner.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Robert Herrick, A.B., Assistant Professor of Rhetoric in the University of Chicago.
Cloth, $5.00; boards, $0.40
[For Reading, 1903 to 1908.]

Goldsmith’s The Vicar of Wakefield.
Edited with Introduction and Notes, by Mary A. Jordan, A.M., Professor of Rhetoric and Old English in Smith College.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40
[For Reading, 1903, 1904, 1905.]
Irving’s Tales of a Traveller.
With an Introduction by Brander Matthews, D.C.L., Professor of Dramatic Literature in Columbia University, and explanatory Notes by the General Editor of the series.
Cloth, $1.00

Irving’s Life of Goldsmith.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Lewis B. Semple, M.A., Ph.D., Instructor in English, Brooklyn Commercial High School,
New York.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1906, 1907, 1908.]

Edited by James Greenleaf Croswell, A.B., Head-master of the Brearley School, New York.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

Macaulay’s Essays on Milton and Addison.
Edited by James Greenleaf Croswell, A.B., Head-master of the Brearley School, New York.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Study, 1903, 1904, 1905.]

Macaulay’s Life of Samuel Johnson.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by the Rev. Huber Gray
Buehler of the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn.
Cloth, $0.50

Macaulay’s Essays:
1. Life of Samuel Johnson, by the Reverend Huber Gray Buehler
   Hotchkiss School.
2. Addison, by James Greenleaf Croswell, Brearley School.
   Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Study, 1906, 1907, 1908.]

Milton’s L’Allegro, Il Penseroso, Comus, and Lycidas.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes by William P. Trent, A.M., Professor of English in Barnard College.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Study, 1903 to 1908.]

Milton’s Paradise Lost. Books I. and II.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Edward Everett Hale, Jr., Ph.D., Professor of Rhetoric and Logic in Union College.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

Pope’s Homer’s Iliad. Books I., VI., XXII. and XXIV.
Edited by William H. Maxwell, A.M., Ph.D., Superintendent of City Schools, New York; and Percival Chubb, Prin. High School,
The Ethical Culture Schools.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40
Scott’s Ivanhoe.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by BLISS PERRY, A.M., Sometime Professor of Oratory and Æsthetic Criticism in Princeton University.
Cloth, $0.75; boards, $0.60

[For Reading, 1903 to 1908.]

Scott’s Lady of the Lake.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by GEORGE RICE CARPENTER, Professor of Rhetoric and English Composition in Columbia University.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1906, 1907, 1908.]

Scott’s Marmion.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by ROBERT MORSS LOVITT, A.B., Assistant Professor of English in the University of Chicago.
Cloth, $0.75

Scott’s Woodstock.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by BLISS PERRY, A.M., formerly Professor of Oratory and Æsthetic Criticism in Princeton University.
Cloth, $0.75

Shakspere’s As You Like It.
With an Introduction by BARRETT WENDELL, A.B., Professor of English in Harvard University; and Notes by WILLIAM LYON PHELPS, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of English Literature in Yale University.
Cloth, $0.75

Shakspere’s Macbeth.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by JOHN MATTHEWS MANLEY, Ph.D., Professor of English in the University of Chicago.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Study, 1903 to 1905. For Reading, 1906 to 1908.]

Shakspere’s Merchant of Venice.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by FRANCIS B. GUMMERE, Ph.D., Professor of English in Haverford College.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1903 to 1908.]

Shakspere’s Julius Cæsar.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by GEORGE C. D. ODELL, Ph.D., Tutor in Rhetoric and English Composition in Columbia University.
With portrait of Shakspere.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1903, 1904, 1905. For Study, 1906 to 1908.]

Shakspere’s A Midsummer Night’s Dream.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by GEORGE PIERCE BAKER, A.B., Assistant Professor in Harvard University.
Cloth, $0.60

The introduction is especially designed to show the picturesqueness of Shakspere’s time, and the conditions of life in the London of 1600.
The Sir Roger de Coverley Papers.
From “The Spectator.” Edited by D. O. S. Lowell, A.M., of the Roxbury Latin School, Roxbury, Mass. Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1903 to 1908.]

Southey’s Life of Nelson.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Edwin L. Miller, A.M., of the Englewood High School, Illinois. Cloth, $0.75

Tennyson’s Idylls of the King: Gareth and Lynette, The Passing of Arthur, Lancelot and Elaine.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Sophie C. Hart, Associate Professor of Rhetoric in Wellesley College.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1906, 1907, 1908.]

Tennyson’s The Princess.
Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by George Edward Woodberry, A.B., Professor of Literature in Columbia University.
Cloth, $0.50; boards, $0.40

[For Reading, 1903, 1904, 1905.]

Webster’s First Bunker Hill Oration.
Together with other Addresses relating to the Revolution. Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Fred Newton Scott, Ph.D., Professor of Rhetoric in the University of Michigan. Cloth, $0.60

Prof. C. B. Bradley, University of California; Member of English Conference of the National Committee of Ten:—“Admirably adapted to accomplish what you intend—to interest young persons in thoughtful reading of noble literature. The help given seems just what is needed; its generosity is not of the sort to make the young student unable to help himself. I am greatly pleased with the plan and with its execution.”

Prof. Katherine Lee Bates, Wellesley College:—“The series is admirably planned, the ‘Suggestions to Teachers’ being a peculiarly valuable feature.”

Principal George H. Browne, Cambridge, Mass.:—“It is the most attractive, most consistent, most practicable, and, at the same time, most scholarly series for college preparation yet produced.”

Byron Groce, Master in English, Boston Latin School:—“As a series the books have two strong points: there is a unity of method in editing that I have seen in no other series: the books are freer from objections in regard to the amount and kind of editing than any other series I know.”

Charles C. Ramsay, Principal of Durfee High School, Fall River, Mass.:—“The introductions, the suggestions to teachers, the chronological tables, and the notes are most admirable in design and execution. The editor-in-chief and his associates have rendered a distinct service to secondary schools.”
Longmans' English

Professor H. S. Pancoast, in the Educational Review, September, 1897:—"The scope and purpose of Longmans' English Classics Series, have already been explained in the pages of this Review. It is, therefore, unnecessary to say more than a few words on the comprehensive excellence of the general editor's plan, and its careful adaptation to the precise object in view. The efforts of the Committee of Ten to improve the study of English in our preparatory schools are likely to be ably seconded by a series which will furnish the English text required for admission to college, not merely well edited, but, what is perhaps even more important, edited upon uniform and consistent principles. Masterpiece after masterpiece being thus approached in the same manner, the series become an instrument of training in methods of study for both teacher and pupils, and, as such, a steady if unobtrusive influence in shaping the teaching of English in our schools.

Differ as we may about the best way of teaching English literature we are likely to agree that this series is built in the main upon the right lines. It is unexceptionable in its outward form and habit. It gives us in every case a clearly printed text, sufficiently annotated, but not, as a rule, overweighted with pedantic comments; a biographical and critical introduction; a bibliography, through which the student can find his way to the literary and historical setting of the particular classic on which he is engaged; a chronological table and some hints to teachers—often of a most suggestive and helpful character. In every case we thus have a book edited according to an excellent general plan. . . . Taking the series as a whole, perhaps a trifle more stress might be laid on the place of the various classics and their authors in the large movement of history and literature, but for the rest I cannot see how its general character could be improved."

Albert E. Bailey, Worcester Academy, Worcester, Mass.:—"Examination and comparison convinces me that your series is the most valuable to the student and the most suggestive to the teacher."

Mr. William Steen Gaud, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.:—"There is no question of the superiority of your series of Classics over any I have seen."

A. F. Nightingale, Supt. High Schools, Chicago:—"I am not in the habit of writing testimonials, but a regard for the highest interests of our young people preparing for college work, makes it my duty to commend in unqualified terms your most excellent series of English classics. Nothing has been left undone. The editor, the annotator, the printer, the binder, has each in turn shown himself master of his work. The book need only to be known to be used, and they must soon find a way into every secondary school whose instructors in English are real teachers, intelligent and up-to-date."

Educational Review:—"A very inspiring and suggestive display of scholarly work."

John McDuffie, School for Girls, Springfield, Mass.:—"The most scholarly and, at the same time, the most teachable of any at present in the market."

Martin W. Sampson, Professor of English, University of Indiana:—"The series is a credit to American scholarship."
SUPPLEMENTARY READING, ETC.

Lang—The Animal Story-Book Reader.
Edited by Andrew Lang. With 77 illustrations by Henry J. Ford and Lancelot Speed. 12mo. 175 pages. $0.50*

Brassey—A Voyage in the "Sunbeam."
By Lady Brassey. Adapted for School and Class Reading. With 37 illustrations and maps. 12mo. 384 pages. $0.75

"This is a story of a ten months' cruise around the world. It is told in very bright and attractive narrative, and is full of interesting information about foreign lands. As a supplementary reading-book it has proved very welcome to children, and no better means of teaching geography could be found."

Gulliver's Travels.

Higginson—Young Folks' Book of American Explorers.
By Thomas Wentworth Higginson. With Illustrations. 12mo. Cloth. $1.20. Separate parts in paper covers. Each, $0.15

Doyle—Micah Clarke.
A Tale of Monmouth's Rebellion. By A. Conan Doyle, Author of "The Refugees," etc. Abridged and adapted for School Reading With Illustrations by H. R. Paget and H. R. Millar. 12mo. 216 pages. $0.50†

Gardiner—Historical Biographies.
By Samuel Rawson Gardiner. 16mo. 256 pages. $0.45*

Garrison—Parables for School and Home.
By Wendell P. Garrison. With 21 Wood-cuts by Gustav Kruell. 12mo, cloth. 228 pages. $1.25

The King's Story-Book.

Uniform with the above:
The Queen's Story-Book.
The Prince's Story-Book.
The Princess's Story-Book.
Roosevelt—New York. (Historic Towns.)

By Theodore Roosevelt. With 3 Maps. 12mo. 250 pages. $1.25

Lodge—Boston. (Historic Towns.)

Laughton—Sea Fights and Adventures.

By John Knox Laughton. Crown 8vo. 310 pages with 32 illustrations, and 8 maps and plans. $2.00.

These historical stories are strictly true.

Macaulay—Lays of Ancient Rome, with Ivry and the Armada.

With illustrations by George Scharf. Popular edition. Fcap. 4to. Paper cover, $0.20. Cloth, $0.40

The Retreat of the Ten Thousand.

By Professor C. Witt, Head-master of the Alstadt Gymnasium at Königsberg. Translated by Francis Younghusband. With a Preface by H. G. Dakyns, M.A. With Route Map, 12 Full-page Plates, and 17 Illustrations in the Text. Crown 8vo. $1.25

The Trojan War.

By Professor C. Witt. Translated from the German by Francis Younghusband. With a Preface by the Rev. W. G. Rutherford, M.A., Head-master of Westminster School. Crown 8vo. $0.60.
Chatty Readings in Elementary Science.
Edited by A. Grace Gibson, Model Dept., N. Y. Training School for Teachers. Instructive lessons on the anatomy and habits of animals, wild and domestic, with many illustrations in color and in black and white. Teachers' notes, with summaries of lessons and blackboard work. Suitable for Third, Fourth, and Fifth grades.

Book I., with 8 colored plates and over 100 other illustrations, $0.36
Book II., with 7 colored plates and nearly 100 other illustrations, $0.36
Book III., with 8 colored plates and over 80 other illustrations, $0.45

The chief feature of the Chatty Readings is the easy conversational (not condescending) style in which the lessons are presented. They are constructed for the conveyance of elementary scientific facts in the most simple manner, as many technicalities as possible being studiously avoided; throughout these lessons the humane treatment of animals is unobtrusively but consistently inculcated.

Longmans' Household Science Reader I.
Emphasizing the utilitarian side of nature study. For Third primary grade. 12mo. 133 pages. Illustrated. $0.42

Longmans' Pictorial Geographical Reader I.
12mo. 160 pages. $0.36

Designed as a supplementary reader for the grade immediately preceding that in which a text-book is introduced. Many of the elementary and necessary facts of geography are presented in simple stories, making a series of interesting lessons not in didactic style, but on conversational lines so as to invite the interest of the young pupil to a subject which he must shortly take up in a formal manner.

Dodge—A Reader in Physical Geography for Beginners.
By Richard E. Dodge, Professor of Geography, Teachers College (Columbia); Editor of the Journal of School Geography. With about 80 illustrations, largely from original photographs by the author, chosen for their geographic value. Adapted to advanced grades in grammar schools. 12mo. 247 pages. $0.70*

This little book has been written with the thought that hitherto no one volume has been available in which the more important principles of Physical Geography have been brought together in a form to be used by beginners in the subject. The demand for such a treatment of Physical Geography grows larger daily, and in attempting to meet that demand the author has aimed to adapt the subject-matter to the needs, the abilities, and the interests of youthful readers. For that reason much attention has been given to human and other life conditions, in so far as they are dependent upon, or determined by, the physical features of the world.
Longmans' "Ship" Literary Readers.

The volumes of this series of Readers are firmly bound in cloth, printed in large type on good paper, and copiously illustrated. The selections are from the best modern writers, among them

J. Fenimore Cooper, Captain Marryat,
A. Conan Doyle, Cardinal Newman,
James Anthony Froude, Charles Reade,
Washington Irving, Henry W. Longfellow,
James Whitcomb Riley, John G. Whittier,
H. Rider Haggard,
Robert L. Stevenson,
Mark Twain,
Bret Harte,
R. D. Blackmore.

The series has been adopted for the Public Schools of Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Denver, Jersey City, Bloomfield and Passaic, N. J., New York, and Portland, Me.; also in many important private schools.

The chief aim of these books is to cultivate a taste for the best reading, and to help to give children a love for nature and for all that is beautiful and good.

First Primer. Simple Reading and Word-building. 75 Illustrations, all in Color. 32 pages. $0.12*

Second Primer. Short Stories and Word-building. 24 Illustrations, all in Color. 48 pages. $0.12*

Infant Reader. Short Stories and Word-building. 30 Illustrations. 80 pages. $0.15*

Book 1. Readings in Prose and Poetry; Spelling Lessons, etc. With 87 Illustrations. 12mo. 128 pages. $0.25*

Book 2. Readings in Prose and Poetry; Spelling, Word-building, and Dictation Lessons. With 84 Illustrations. 12mo. 128 pages. $0.25*

Advanced Reader. Modern Prose Literature of England. 286 pages, fully illustrated. $0.60*

Book 3. Readings in Prose and Poetry: Spelling, Word-building, and Dictation Lessons. 84 Illustrations. 12mo. 192 pages. $0.35*

Book 4. Readings in Prose and Poetry: Spelling, Dictation, and Composition Lessons. 55 Illustrations. 12mo. 208 pages. $0.40*

Book 5. Readings in Prose and Poetry: Consisting of Original Matter, and Selections from Standard Authors. Composition and Word-building Lessons. 46 Illustrations. 12mo. 240 pages. $0.45*

ANDREW LANG’S BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

The extended use of Mr. Andrew Lang’s Stories and Fairy Tales in Schools and Libraries has led to the preparation of abridged editions of certain volumes at lower prices, and in other ways especially adapted for School and Class use.

The Blue Poetry Book.

New Edition without Illustrations, for Use in Schools, with Lives of the Authors of the Poems. 16mo. $0.60*

Christian at Work:—The volume is, in short, a treasure-house of poetic genius, and the children who read it can hardly fail to develop a taste for good literature.

The Blue True Story Book.

Adapted for Use in Schools. Containing the Story of Grace Darling; An Artist’s Adventure; The Tale of Rorke’s Drift; The Chevalier Johnstone’s Escape; The Conquest of Montezuma’s Empire, and other Stories. With 22 Illustrations. 12mo. 150 pages. $0.50*

The Red True Story Book.

Adapted for Use in Schools. Containing Wilson’s Last Fight; The Life and Death of Joan the Maid; The Conquest of Peru; How Marbot Crossed the Danube, and other Stories. With 41 Illustrations. 186 pages. $0.50*

Fairy Books and Story Books.

Mr. Lang’s larger Fairy Tale books are as follows: THE BLUE FAIRY BOOK; THE RED FAIRY BOOK; THE GREEN FAIRY BOOK; THE PINK FAIRY BOOK; THE YELLOW FAIRY BOOK; THE ANIMAL STORY BOOK; THE TRUE STORY BOOK; THE RED TRUE STORY BOOK; THE BLUE POETRY BOOK; MY OWN FAIRY BOOK; THE RED BOOK OF ANIMAL STORIES; ARABIAN NIGHTS; THE GREY FAIRY BOOK. Each $2.00. THE VIOLET FAIRY BOOK; THE BOOK OF ROMANCE. Each $1.60 net. With many Plates and Illustrations. Crown 8vo. Gilt edges.

Longmans’ Supplementary Readers.

Prince Darling, And Other Stories.

Including The White Cat, The Wonderful Sheep, etc. With 39 Illustrations. 216 pages. $0.40*

The Princess on the Glass Hill, And Other Stories.

Including The Terrible Head, etc. With 27 Illustrations. 168 pages. $0.30*
Longmans' Supplementary Readers—Continued.

The History of Whittington, And Other Stories.
Including Aladdin, The Forty Thieves, etc. With 27 Illustrations. 168 pages. $0.30*

The Sleeping Beauty, And Other Stories.
Including The Bronze Ring, etc. With 25 Illustrations. 120 pages. $0.20*

Jack the Giant Killer, And Other Stories.
Including Prince Hyacinth, etc. With 22 Illustrations. 120 pages. $0.20*

Cinderella; or, The Little Glass Slipper, And Other Stories.
With 20 Illustrations. 104 pages. $0.20*

Little Red Riding Hood, And Other Stories.
Including Hansel and Grettel, etc. With 25 Illustrations. 104 pages. $0.20*

INFANT FAIRY READERS. Square 16mo. Large type, limp. Each $0.15*

A Fairy Tale of a Fox, a Dog, a Cat, and a Magpie.
By Loïs Bates. With 21 Illustrations.

Jack and the Bean Stalk, and Brother and Sister.
Edited by Mrs. Heller. With 11 Illustrations.

Snowdrop, and Other Stories.
Edited by Mrs. Heller. With 7 Illustrations.

Selections from the Poets.

Wordsworth. Edited by Andrew Lang. With Photogravure Frontispiece of Rydal Mount, 16 Illustrations and numerous Initial Letters by Alfred Parsons, A.R.A. Crown 8vo. $1.50

Longmans' Junior School Poetry Book. Selected and Arranged by W. Peterson, LL.D., of McGill University, Montreal. 12mo. 152 pages. 50 cents.
Marsland—Interpretive Reading.

Contents: PART I. INTERPRETIVE READING. Interpretive Reading that Appeals to the Understanding. Interpretive Reading that Appeals to the Emotions. Interpretive Reading or Speaking that Appeals to the Will.—PART II. BREATHING. Physiology of the Respiratory Organs. Breathing Exercises.—PART III. VOICE CULTURE. Physiology of the Vocal Organs. The Production of Tone. Voice Culture. The Organs of Articulation.—PART IV. GESTURE. Responsive Gesture Exercises.—Poising Exercises. Principles of Gesture. Responsive Gesture Exercises.—

INDEX.

Mrs. Margaret S. Mooney, State Normal College, Albany, N. Y.:—"My idea of the real value of a new book is always based upon one fact—Has the author advanced his subject? Tried by this test the book is a distinct advance, particularly in the clear and simple arrangement of the successive steps. The triple aim—to exercise the mind, the emotions, and the will—has been well carried out. It is by far the most satisfactory work on elocution that I have ever seen. I shall recommend it to my present class as well as to all classes I may have in the future."

The Hon. Frank Nelson, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Kansas:—"This book occupies a distinct place in the broad field of reading. Miss Marsland has presented the subject in line with the most modern ideas in reading, and her method is so thoroughly pedagogical that the student cannot fail to secure much help from a thorough mastery of the text."

A. S. Humphrey, Department of Oratory, Knox College:—"I am pleased with its freshness and with its suggestiveness. To my mind it is of more practical value than any book I have yet seen."

Miss Carolyn B. Ayres, Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y.:—"After a very careful review I can say in all sincerity that it is the most helpful book of its kind I have seen, abounding, as it does, in clear, practical suggestions for the conception and presentation of the author's thought and feeling as expressed through voice and body. No one, it seems to me, can fail to 'suit the action to the word, and the word to the action,' if they follow conscientiously the principles laid down in Miss Marsland's most suggestive book."

Miss Mary F. Hendrick, Teacher of Elocution, S.N.S., Cortland, N. Y.:—"A volume that ought to be in all the high schools in the country. As a study of interpretation it is the best thing that I have seen. The chapter on gesture is just what the young student needs, a few laws that are easily applied and the foundation of all easy work."

President A. R. Taylor, James Milliken University, Decatur, Ill.:—"I have carefully read her book and feel that she has succeeded admirably in preparing a work on the art of interpretation and expression that will prove of incalculable value in all classes of secondary and higher institutions of learning. The value of the interpretative work she so wisely develops has been so fully demonstrated in high places that I believe it will find general and enthusiastic acceptance among teachers of reading and elocution everywhere."
Baynes—Shakespeare Studies and Other Essays.
By Thomas Spencer Baynes, LL.D., late Professor of Logic, Metaphysics, and English Literature in the University of St. Andrews, and Editor of the Ninth Edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." With a Biographical Preface by Professor Lewis Campbell. Crown 8vo. 425 pages. $2.50

Contents: Shakespeare.—What Shakespeare Learnt at School.
—Shakespearian Glossaries.—New Shakespearian Interpretations.
—English Dictionaries.

Boswell-Stone—Shakspere's Holinshed.
The Chronicles and the Historical Plays Compared. By W. G. Boswell-Stone. Crown quarto, gilt top. $5.00

In Shakspere's Holinshed the historical plays are compared, scene by scene, with passages chiefly derived from Holinshed's Chronicles; supplemented by illustrations taken from other sources—Foxe's Acts and Monuments, for example—which even Holinshed's massive tomes did not embrace.

The excerpts are generally accompanied by prefatory words, narrating the dramatic action in the dramatic order, and noticing, as they occur, all important variations of historic chronology and historic facts.

Madden. The Diary of Master William Silence; A Study of Shakespeare and of Elizabethan Sport.
By the Right Hon. D. H. Madden, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Dublin. With Illustrations. 8vo. $4.00

By Rev. Beverley E. Warner. Crown 8vo. 331 pages. $1.75

A work of great value to the student of history, showing what an aid to the understanding of certain important phases of England's national development lies in these historical plays, which cover a period of three hundred years—from King John to Henry VIII.

Worsfold. The Principles of Criticism.